THE HINDU WIFE
AND THE HYMNS.

BY
SIR WILLIAM JONES., KNIGHT.

ONE OF THE JUDGES OF HER MAJESTY'S LATE SUPREME COURT, FORT WILLIAM, BENGAL, FOUNDER AND
FIRST PRESIDENT OF THE ASIATIC SOCIETY OF BENGAL.

REPUBLISHED BY JOGENDRA NÁTH GHOSE.

THE ENCHANTED FRUIT;

THE HINDU WIFE.

‘O LOVELY age ¹, by Brahmens fam’d
Pure Setye Yug ² in Sanscrit nam’d !
Delightful ! Not for cups of gold,
Or wives a thousand centuries old ;
Or men, degenerate now and small,
Then one and twenty cubits tall :
Not that plump cows full udders bore,
And bowls with holy curd ³ ran o’er ;
Not that, by Deities defended
Fish, Boar, Snake, Lion ⁴, heav’n-descended,
Learn’d Pendits, now grown sticks and clods,
Redde fast the Nagry of the Gods ⁵
And laymen, faithful to Narayn ⁶
Believ’d in Brahmas mystic strain ⁷

A parody on the Ode in Tasso’s Aminta, beginning, O bella età dell’ oro !

The Golden Age of the Hindus.

Called Joghràt, the food of CRISHNA in his infancy and youth.

The four first Avata’rs, or Incarnations of the Divine Spirit.

The Sanscrit, or Sengscrit, is written in letters so named.

Narayn or Na’ra’yan, the Spirit of God.

The Vayds, or Sacred Writings of Brahma, called Rig, Sa’m, and Yeiar : doubts have n raised concerning the authority of the fourth, or Al’herven,

Not that all Subjects spoke plain truth,
 While Rajas cherish'd eld and youth,
 No—yet delightful times ! because
Nature then reign'd, and Nature's Laws ;
 When females of the softest kind
 Were unaffected, unconfin'd ;
 And this grand rule from none was hidden ⁸ ;
 WHAT PLEASETH, HATH NO LAW FORBIDDEN.'

Thus, with a lyre in India strung,
Aminta's poet would have sung ;
 And thus too, in a modest way,
 All virtuous males will sing or say :
 But swarthy nymphs of Hindustan
 Look deeper than short-sighted man,
 And thus, in some poetic chime,
 Would speak with reason, as with rhyme :
 ' O lovelier age, by Brahmens fam'd,
 Gay Dwápar Yug ⁹ in Sanscrit nam'd !
 Delightful ! though impure with brass
 In many a green ill-scented mass ;
 Though husbands, but sev'n cubits high,
 Must in a thousand summers die ;
 Though, in the lives of dwindled men,
Ten parts were Sin ; Religion, ten ;
 Though cows would rarely fill the pail,
 But made th' expected creambowl fail ;
 Though lazy Pendits ill could read
 (No care of ours) their Yejar Veid ;
 Though Rajas look'd a little proud,
 And Ranies rather spoke too loud ;
 Though Gods, display'd to mortal view
 In mortal forms, were only two ;

8. " Se piace, ei lice." Tasso.

9. The Brazen Age, or that in which Vice and Virtue were in equal proportion

THE HINDU WIFE.

(Yet CRISHNA ¹⁰, sweetest youth, was one,
Crishna, whose cheeks outblaz'd the sun)
Delightful, ne'ertheless ! because
Not bound by vile unnatural laws,
Which curse this age from Cáley ¹¹ nam'd,
By some base woman-hater fram'd.
Prepost'rous ! that one biped vain
Should drag ten house-wives in his train,
And stuff them in a gaudy cage,
Slaves to weak lust or potent rage !
Not such the Dwáper Yug ! oh then
ONE BUXOM DAME MIGHT WED FIVE MEN.'

True History, in solemn terms,
This Philosophic lore confirms ;
For India once, as now cold Tibet ¹²,
A groupe unusual might exhibit,
Of sev'ral husbands, free from strife,
Link'd fairly to a single wife !
Thus Botanists, with eyes acute
To see prolific dust minute,
Taught by their learned northern Brahmen ¹³
To class by pistil and by stamen,
Produce from nature's rich dominion
Flow'rs Polyandrian Monogynian,
Where embryo blossoms, fruits, and leaves
Twenty prepare, and ONE receives.

But, lest my word should nought avail,
Ye Fair to no unholy tale

10. The Apollo of India.

11. The Earthen Age, or that of Caly or Impurity : this verse alludes to Ca'ley, the Hecate of the Indians.

12. See the accounts published in the Philosophical Transactions from the papers of Mr. Bogle.

13. Linnaeus.

Attend. ¹⁴ Five thousand years ¹⁵ ago,
 As annals in Benares show,
 When Pāndu chiefs with Curus fought ¹⁶
 And each the throne imperial sought,
 Five brothers of the regal line
 Blaz'd high with qualities divine.
 The first a prince without his peer,
 Just, pious, lib'ral Yudhishteir ¹⁷ ;
 Then Erjun, to the base a rod,
 An Hero favour'd by a God ¹⁸
Bheima, like mountain-leopard strong,
 Unrival'd in th' embattled throng,
 Bold Nacul, fir'd by noble shame
 To emulate fraternal fame ;
 And Sehdeo, flush'd with manly grace,
 Bright virtue dawning in his face :
 To these a dame devoid of care,
 Blythe Draupady, the debonair,
 Renown'd for beauty, and for wit,
 In wedlock's pleasing chain was knit ¹⁹

14. The story is told by the Jesuit BOUCHET, in his Letter to HUET, Bishop of Avranches.
 15. A round number is chosen ; but the Calij Yug, a little before which Crishna disappeared from this world, began four thousand, eight hundred, and eighty-four years ago, that is, according to our Chronologists, seven hundred and forty seven before the flood ; and by the calculation of M. Bailly, but four hundred and fifty-four after the foundation of the Indian empire.

16. This war, which Crishna fomented in favour of the Pandus Prince, Yudhishtir, supplied Vya's with the subject of his noble Epic Poem, Maha'bharat.

17. This word is commonly pronounced with a strong accent on the last letter, but the preceding vowel is short in Sengscrit. The Prince is called on the Coast Dherme Ra'j, or Chief Magistrate.

18. The Geita, containing Instructions to Erjun, was composed by Crishna who peculiarly distinguished him.

19. Yudhishtir and Draupady, called Drobada by M. Sonnerat, are deified on the Coast ; and their feast, of which that writer exhibits an engraving, is named the Proccession of Fire, because she passed every year from one of her five husbands to another, after a solemn purification by that element. In the Bha'sha language, her name is written, DRO'PTY.

It fortun'd, at an idle hour,
 This five-mal'd single-femal'd flow'r
 One balmy morn of fruitful May
 Through vales and meadows took its way.
 A low thatch'd mansion met their eye
 In trees umbrageous bosom'd high ;
 Near it (no sight, young maids, for you)
 A temple rose to Mahadew ²⁰.
 A thorny hedge and reedy gate
 Enclos'd the garden's homely state ;
 Plain in its neatness : thither wend
 The princes and their lovely friend.
 Light-pinion'd gales, to charm the sense,
 Their odorif'rous breath dispense ;
 From Béla's ²¹ pearl'd, or pointed, bloom,
 And Málty rich, they steal perfume :
 There honey-scented Singarhár,
 And Jáhy, like a rising star,
 Strong Chempá, darted by Cámdew,
 And Mulsery of paler hue,
Cayora ²², which the Ranies wear
 In tangles of their silken hair,
 Round ²³ Bábul-flow'rs, and Gulachein
 Dyed like the shell of Beauty's Queen,
 Sweet Mindy ²⁴ press'd for crimson stains,
 And sacred Tulsy ²⁵, pride of plains,
 With Séwty, small unblushing rose,
 Their odours mix, their tints disclose,

20. The Indian JUPITER.

21. The varieties of Bela, and the three flowers next mentioned, are beautiful species of Jasmin.

22. The Indian Spikenard.

23. The Mimosa, or true Acacia, that produces the Arabian Gum.

24. Called Alkhinna' by the Arabs.

25. Of the kind called Ocymum.

And, as a gemm'd tiara, bright,
Paint the fresh branches with delight.

One tree above all others tower'd
With shrubs and saplings close imbower'd,
For every blooming child of Spring
Paid homage to the verdant King :
Aloft a solitary fruit,
Full sixty cubits from the root,
Kiss'd by the breeze, luxuriant hung,
Soft chrysolite with em'ralsds strung.
' Try we, said Erjun indiscreet,
If yon proud fruit be sharp or sweet ;
My shaft its parent stalk shall wound :
Receive it, ere it reach the ground.'

Swift as his word, an arrow flew :
The dropping prize besprent with dew
The brothers, in contention gay,
Catch, and on gather'd herbage lay.

That instant scarlet lightnings flash,
And Jemna's waves her borders lash,
Crishna from Swerga's ²⁶ height descends,
Observant of his mortal friends :
Not such, as in his earliest years,
Among his wanton cowherd peers,
In Gocul or Brindāben's ²⁷ glades,
He sported with the dairy-maids ;
Or, having pip'd and danc'd enough,
Clos'd the brisk night with blindman's-buff ²⁸ ;
(List, antiquaries, and record
This pastime of the Gopia's Lord ²⁹)

26. The heaven of Indra, or the Empyreum.

27. In the district of Maṭhura, not far from Agra.

28. This is told in the Bhāgavat.

29. GOPY NĀTĪ, a title of Crishna, corresponding with Nymphagetes, an epithet of Neptune.

But radiant with ethereal fire :
Nared alone could bards inspire
 In lofty Slokes ³⁰ his mien to trace,
 And unimaginable grace.
 With human voice, in human form,
 He mildly spake, and hush'd the storm :
 ' O mortals, ever prone to ill !
 Too rashly Erjun prov'd his skill.
 Yon fruit a pious Muny ³¹ owns,
 Assistant of our heav'nly thrones.
 The golden pulp, each month renew'd,
 Supplies him with ambrosial food,
 Should he the daring archer curse,
 Not Mentra ³² deep, nor magic verse,
 Your gorgeous palaces could save
 From flames, your embers, from the wave ³³.'

The princes, whom th' immod'rate blaze
 Forbids their sightless eyes to raise,
 With doubled hands his aid implore,
 And vow submission to his lore.
 ' One remedy, and simply one,
 Or take, said he, or be undone :
 Let each his crimes or faults confess,
 The greatest name, omit the less ;
 Your actions, words, e'en thoughts reveal ;
 No part must Draupady conceal :
 So shall the fruit, as each applies
 The faithful charm, ten cubits rise ;

30. Tetrasticks without rhyme.

31. An inspired Writer : twenty are so called.

32. Incantation.

33. This will receive illustration from a passage in the Ramayen : ' Even he, who cannot be slain by the ponderous arms of Indra, nor by those of Ca'ly, nor by the terrible Checra (or Discus), of Vishnu, shall be destroyed, if a Brahmen execrate him, as if he were consumed by fire.'

Till, if the dame be frank and true,
It join the branch, where late it grew.'
He smil'd and shed a transient gleam ;
Then vanish'd like a morning dream.

Now, long entranc'd, each waking brother
Star'd with amazement on another,
Their consort's cheek forgot its glow,
And pearly tears began to flow ;
When Yudishteir, high-gifted man,
His plain confession thus began.

' Inconstant fortune's wreathed smiles,
Duryódhen's rage, Duryódhen's wiles,
Fires rais'd for this devoted head,
E'en poison for my brethren spread,
My wand'rings through wild scenes of wo,
And persecuted life, you know.
Rude wassailers defil'd my halls,
And riot shook my palace-walls,
My treasures wasted. This and more
With resignation calm I bore ;
But, when the late-descending god
Gave all I wish'd with soothing nod,
When, by his counsel and his aid,
Our banners danc'd, our clarions bray'd
(Be this my greatest crime confess'd),
Revenge sate ruler in my breast :
I panted for the tug of arms,
For skirmish hot, for fierce alarms ;
Then had my shaft Duryódhen rent,
This heart had glow'd with sweet content.'

He ceas'd : the living gold upsprung,
And from the bank ten cubits hung.

Embolden'd by this fair success,
Next Erjun hasten'd to confess :

'When I with Aswattthāma fought ;
 My noose the fell assassin caught ;
 My spear transfix'd him to the ground :
 His giant limbs firm cordage bound :
 His holy thread extorted awe
 Spar'd by religion and by law ;
 But, when his murd'rous hands I view'd
 In blameless kindred gore imbued,
 Fury my boiling bosom sway'd,
 And Rage unsheath'd my willing blade :
 Then, had not Crishna's arm divine
 With gentle touch suspended mine,
 This hand a Brahmen had destroy'd,
 And vultures with his blood been cloy'd.'

The fruit, forgiving Erjun's dart,
Ten cubits rose with eager start.

Flush'd with some tints of honest shame,
Bheima to his confession came :

'Twas at a feast for battles won
 From Dhriterā'shtra's guileful son,
 High on the board in vases pil'd
 All vegetable nature smil'd :
 Proud Anaras ³⁴ his beauties told,
 His verdant crown and studs of gold,
 To Dallim ³⁵, whose soft rubies laugh'd
 Bursting with juice, that gods have quass'd ;
 Ripe Kellas ³⁶ here in heaps were seen,
Kellas, the golden and the green,
 With Ambas ³⁷ priz'd on distant coasts,
 Whose birth the fertile Ganga boasts :
 (Some gleam like silver, some outshine
 Wrought ingots from Besoara's mine) :
Corindas there, too sharp alone,

34. Ananas.

35. Pomegranate.

36. Plantains.

37. Mangos.

With honey mix'd, impurpled shone ;
Talsans ³⁸ his liquid crystal spread
 Pluck'd from high Tara's tufted head ;
 Round Jamas ³⁹ delicate as fair,
 Like rose-water perfum'd the air ;
 Bright salvers high-rais'd Comlas ⁴⁰ held
 Like topazes, which Amrit ⁴¹ swell'd ;
 While some delicious Attas ⁴² bore,
 And Catels ⁴³ warm, a sugar'd store ;
 Others with Béla's grains were heap'd,
 And mild Papayas honey-steep'd ;
 Or sweet Ajeirs ⁴⁴ the red and pale,
 Sweet to the taste and in the gale.
 Here mark'd we purest basons fraught
 With sacred cream and fam'd Joghrat ;
 Nor saw we not rich bowls contain
 The Chawla's ⁴⁵ light nutritious grain,
 Some virgin-like in native pride,
 And some with strong Haldea ⁴⁶ dyed,
 Some tasteful to dull palates made
 If Merich ⁴⁷ lend his fervent aid,
 Or Langa ⁴⁸ shap'd like od'rous nails,
 Whose scent o'er groves of spice prevails,
 Or Adda ⁴⁹ breathing gentle heat,
 Or Joutery ⁵⁰ both warm and sweet.
Supiary ⁵¹ next (in Pa'na ⁵² chew'd,
 And Gatha ⁵³, with strong pow'rs endued,
 Mix'd with Elachy's ⁵⁴ glowing seeds,
 Which some remoter climate breeds),
 Near Jeifel ⁵⁵ sate, like Jeifel fram'd
 Though not for equal fragrance nam'd :

38. Palmyra-fruit. 39. Rose-apples. 40. Oranges. 41. The Hindu Nectar. 42. Custard-apples. 43. Jaik-fruit. 44. Guayavas. 45. Rice. 46. Turmeric 47. Indian Pepper. 48. Cloves. 49. Ginger, 50. Mace. 51. Areca-nut. 52. Betel-leaf. 53. What we call Japan-earth. 54. Cardamums, 55. Nutmeg.

Last, Na'ryal ⁵⁶, whom all ranks esteem,
 Pour'd in full cups his dulcet stream :
 Long I survey'd the doubtful board
 With each high delicacy stor'd ;
 Then freely gratified my soul,
 From many a dish, and many a bowl,
 Till health was lavish'd, as my time :
Intemp'rance was my fatal crime.'

Uprose the fruit ; and now mid-way
 Suspended shone like blazing day.

Nacal then spoke : (a blush o'erspread
 His cheeks, and conscious droop'd his head) :
 ' Before Duryo'dhen, ruthless king,
 Taught his fierce darts in air to sing,
 With bright-arm'd ranks, by Crishna sent,
 Elate from Indraprest ⁵⁷ I went Through Eastern realms ; and vanquish'd all
 From rough Almo'ra to Nipa'l.
 Where ev'ry mansion, new or old,
 Flam'd with Barbaric gems and gold.
 Here shone with pride the regal stores
 On iv'ry roofs, and cedrine floors ;
 There diadems of price unknown
 Blaz'd with each all-attracting stone ;
 Firm diamonds, like fix'd honour true,
 Some pink, and some of yellow hue,
 Some black, yet not the less esteem'd ;
 The rest like tranquil Jemna gleam'd,
 When in her bed the Gopia lave
 Betray'd by the pellucid wave.
 Like raging fire the ruby glow'd,
 Or soft, but radiant, water show'd ;

56. Cocoanut.

57. DEHLY.

Pure amethysts, in richest ore
 Oft found, a purple vesture wore ;
 Sapphirs, like yon ethereal plain ;
 Em'rals, like *Peipel*⁵⁸ fresh with rain ;
 Gay topazes, translucent gold ;
 Pale chrysolites of softer mould ;
 Fam'd beryls, like the surge marine,
 Light-azure mix'd with modest green ;
 Refracted ev'ry varying dye,
 Bright as yon bow, that girds the sky.
 Here opals, which all hues unite,
 Display'd their many-tinctur'd light,
 With turcoises divinely blue
 (Though doubts arise, where first they grew,
 Whether chaste elephantine bone
 By min'rals ting'd, or native stone),
 And pearls unblemish'd, such as deck
*Bhava'ny's*⁵⁹ wrist or *Lecshmy's*⁶⁰ neck.
 Each castle ras'd, each city storm'd,
 Vast loads of pillag'd wealth I form'd,
 Not for my coffers ; though they bore,
 As you decreed, my lot and more.
 Too pleas'd the brilliant heap I stor'd,
 Too charming seem'd the guarded hoard :
 An odious vice this heart assail'd ;
 Base Av'rice for a time prevail'd.

Th' enchanted orb ten cubits flew,
 Strait as the shaft, which Erjun drew.

Sehdio, with youthful ardour bold,
 Thus, penitent, his failings told :
 ' From clouds, by folly rais'd, these eyes
 Experience clear'd, and made me wise ;
 For, when the crash of battle roar'd,

58. A sacred tree like an Aspin.59. The Indian VENUS.60. The Indian CERES.

When death rain'd blood from spear and sword,
 When, in the tempest of alarms,
 Horse roll'd on horse, arms clash'd with arms,
 Such acts I saw by others done,
 Such perils brav'd, such trophies won,
 That, while my patriot bosom glow'd,
 Though some faint skill, some strength I show'd,
 And, no dull gazer on the field,
 This hero slew, that forc'd to yield,
 Yet, meek humility, to thee,
 When Erjun fought, low sank my knee :
 But, ere the din of war began,
 When black'ning cheeks just mark'd the man,
 Myself invincible I deem'd,
 And great, without a rival, seem'd.
 Whene'er I sought the sportful plain,
 No youth of all the martial train
 With arm so strong or eye so true
 The Checra's ⁶¹ pointed circle threw ;
 None when the polish'd cane we bent,
 So far the light-wing'd arrow sent ;
 None from the broad elastic reed,
 Like me, gave Agnyastra ⁶² speed,
 Or spread its flames with nicer art
 In many an unextinguish'd dart ;
 Or, when in imitated fight
 We sported till departing light,
 None saw me to the ring advance
 With falchion keen or quiv'ring lance,
 Whose force my rooted seat could shake,
 Or on my steed impression make :
 No charioteer, no racer fleet

61. A radiated metalline ring, used as a missile weapon.

62. Fire-arms, or rockets, early known in India.

O'ertook my wheels or rapid feet.
 Next, when the woody heights we sought,
 With madd'ning elephants I fought :
 In vain their high-priz'd tusks they gnash'd ;
 Their trunked heads my Geda ⁶³ mash'd.
 No buffalo, with phrensy strong,
 Could bear my clatt'ring thunder long :
 No pard or tiger, from the wood
 Reluctant brought, this arm withstood.
Pride in my heart his mansion fix'd,
 And with pure drops black poison mix'd.
 Swift rose the fruit, exalted now
Ten cubits from his natal bough.

Fair Draupady, with soft delay,
 Then spake : 'Heav'n's mandate I obey ;
 Though nought, essential to be known,
 Has heav'n to learn, or I to own.
 When scarce a damsel, scarce a child,
 In early bloom your handmaid smil'd,
Love of the World her fancy mov'd,
 Vain pageantry her heart approv'd :
 Her form, she thought, and lovely mien,
 All must admire, when all had seen :
 A thirst of pleasure and of praise
 (With shame I speak) engross'd my days ;
 Nor were my night-thoughts, I confess,
 Free from solicitude for dress ;
 How best to bind my flowing hair
 With art, yet with an artless air
 (My hair, like musk in scent and hue ;
 Oh ! blacker far and sweeter too) ;
 In what nice braid or glossy curl
 To fix a diamond or a pearl,

63. A mace, or club.

And where to smooth the love-spread toils
 With nard or jasmin's fragrant oils ;
 How to adjust the golden Teic ⁶⁴,
 And most adorn my forehead sleek ;
 What Condals ⁶⁵ should emblaze my ears,
 Like Seita's waves ⁶⁶ or Seita's tears ⁶⁷ ;
 How elegantly to dispose
 Bright circlets for my well-form'd nose ;
 With strings of rubies how to deck,
 Or em'rald rows, my stately neck,
 While some that ebon tow'r embrac'd
 Some pendent sought my slender waist ;
 How next my purpled veil to chuse
 From silken stores of varied hues ;
 Which would attract the roving view,
 Pink, violet, purple, orange, blue ;
 The loveliest mantle to select,
 Or unembellish'd or bedeck'd ;
 And how my twisted scarf to place
 With most inimitable grace ;
 (Too thin its warp, too fine its woof,
 For eyes of males not beauty-proof) ;
 What skirts the mantle best would suit,
 Ornate with stars or tissued fruit,
 The flow'r-embroider'd or the plain
 With silver or with golden vein ;
 The Chury ⁶⁸ bright, which gayly shows
 Fair objects, aptly to compose ;
 How each smooth arm and each soft wrist
 By richest Cosecs ⁶⁹ might be kiss'd ;

64. Properly Teica, an ornament of gold, placed above the nose.

65. Pendants.

66. SEITA' CUND, or the Pool of Seita', the wife of RAM, is the name given to the wonderful spring at Mengeir, with boiling water of exquisite clearness and purity.

67. Her tears, when she was made captive by the giant Rawan.

68. A small mirror worn in a ring.

69. Bracelets.

While some, my taper ankles round,
 With sunny radiance ting'd the ground.
 O waste of many a precious hour !
 O Vanity, how vast thy pow'r !'

Cubits twice four th' ambrosial flew,
 Still from its branch disjoin'd by two.

Each husband now, with wild surprise,
 His compeers and his consort eyes ;
 When Yudishteir : 'Thy female breast
 Some faults, perfidious, hath suppress'd.
 Oh ! give the close-lock'd secret room,
 Unfold its bud, expand its bloom ;
 Lest, sinking with our crumbled halls,
 We see red flames devour their walls.'
 Abash'd, yet with a decent pride,
 Firm Draupady the fact denied ;
 Till, through an arched alley green,
 The limit of that sacred scene,
 She saw the dreaded Muny go
 With steps majestically slow ;
 Then said : (a stifled sigh she stole,
 And show'd the conflict of her soul
 By broken speech and flutt'ring heart,
 One trifle more I must impart :
 A Brahmen learn'd, of pure intent
 And look demure, one morn you sent,
 With me, from Sanscrit old, to read
 Each high Purán ⁷⁰ each holy Veid.
 His thread, which Brehmá's lineage show'd' !
 O'er his left shoulder graceful flow'd ;
 Of Crishna and his nymphs he redde,
 How with nine maids the dance he led ;
 How they ador'd, and he repaid

Their homage in the sylvan shade.
 While this gay tale my spirits cheer'd,
 So keen the Pendit's eyes appear'd,
 So sweet his voice—a blameless fire
 This bosom could not but inspire.
 Bright as a God he seem'd to stand :
 The rev'rend volume left his hand,
 With mine he press'd'—With deep despair
 Brothers on brothers wildly stare :
 From Erjun flew a wrathful glance ;
 Tow'rd them they saw their dread advance ;
 Then, trembling, breathless, pale with fear,
 ' Hear, said the matron, calmly hear !
 By Tulsy's leaf the truth I speak—
 The Brahmen ONLY KISS'D MY CHEEK.'

Strait its full height the wonder rose,
 Glad with its native branch to close.

Now to the walk approach'd the Sage
 Exulting in his verdant age :
 His hands, that touch'd his front, express'd
 Due rev'rence to each princely guest,
 Whom to his rural board he led
 In simple delicacy spread,
 With curds their palates to regale,
 And cream-cups from the Gopia's pail.

Could you, ye Fair, like this black wife,
 Restore us to primeval life,
 And bid that apple, pluck'd for Eve
 By him, who might all wives deceive,
 Hang from its parent bough once more
 Divine and perfect, as before,
 Would you confess your little faults ?
 (Great ones were never in your thoughts) ;
 Would you the secret wish unfold,

Or in your heart's full casket hold ?
 Would you disclose your inmost mind,
 And speak plain truth, to bless mankind ?
 ' What ! said the Guardian of our realm,
 With waving crest and fiery helm,
 ' What ! are the fair, whose heav'nly smiles
 Rain glory through my cherish'd isles,
 Are they less virtuous or less true
 Than Indian dames of sooty hue ?
 No, by these arms. The cold surmise
 And doubt injurious vainly rise.
 Yet darses a bard, who better knows,
 This point distrustfully propose ;
 Vain fabler now ! though oft before
 His harp has cheer'd my sounding shore.'

With brow austere the martial maid
 Spoke, and majestic trod the glade :
 To that fell cave her course she held,
 Where Scandal, bane of mortals, dwell'd.
 Outstretch'd on filth the pest she found,
 Black fetid venom streaming round :
 A gloomy light just serv'd to show
 The darkness of the den below.
Britannia with resistless might Soon dragg'd him from his darling night :
 The snakes, that o'er his body curl'd,
 And flung his poison through the world,
 Confounded with the flash of day,
 Hiss'd horribly a hellish lay.
 His eyes with flames and blood suffus'd,
 Long to th' ethereal beam unus'd,
 Fierce in their gory sockets roll'd ;
 And desperation made him bold :
 Pleas'd with the thought of human woes,

On scaly dragon feet he rose.
 Thus, when Asúrs with impious rage,
 Durst horrid war with Dévta's wage,
 And darted many a burning mass
 E'en on the brow of gemm'd Cailá's,
 High o'er the rest, on serpents rear'd,
 The grisly king of Deits appear'd.

The nymph beheld the fiend advance,
 And couch'd her far-extending lance :
 Dire drops he threw ; th' infernal tide
 Her helm and silver hauberk dyed :
 Her moonlike shield before her hung ;
 The monster struck, the monster stung :
 Her spear with many a griding wound
 Fast nail'd him to the groaning ground.
 The wretch, from juster vengeance free,
 Immortal born by heav'n's decree,
 With chains of adamant secur'd,
 Deep in cold gloom she left immur'd.

Now reign at will, victorious Fair,
 In British, or in Indian, air !
 Still with each envying flow'r adorn
 Your tresses radiant as the morn ;
 Still let each Asiatic dye
 Rich tints for your gay robes supply ;
 Still through the dance's laby'rinth float,
 And swell the sweetly-lengthen'd note ;
 Still, on proud steeds or glitt'ring cars,
 Rise on the course like beamy stars ;
 And, when charm'd circles round you close
 Of rhyming bards and smiling beaux,
 Whilst all with eager looks contend
 Their wit or worth to recommend,

Still let your mild, yet piercing, eyes
Impartially adjudge the prize.

A HYMN

TO

C A M D E O .

THE ARGUMENT.

THE Hindú God, to whom the following poem is addressed, appears evidently the same with the Grecian Eros and the Roman CUPIDO ; but the Indian description of his person and arms, his family, attendants, and attributes, has new and peculiar beauties.

According to the mythology of Hindusta'n, he was the son of MAYA, or the general attracting power, and married to RETTY or Affection ; and his bosom friend is BESSENT or Spring : he is represented as a beautiful youth, sometimes conversing with his mother and consort in the midst of his gardens and temples ; sometimes riding by moonlight on a parrot or lory, and attended by dancing-girls or nymphs, the foremost of whom bears his colours, which are a fish on a red ground. His favourite place of resort is a large tract of country round AGRA, and principally the plains of Matra, where KRISHEN also and the nine GOPIA, who are clearly the Apollo and Muses of the Greeks, usually spend the night with music and dance. His bow of sugar-cane or flowers, with a string of bees, and his five arrows, each pointed with an Indian blossom of a heating quality, are allegories equally new and beautiful. He has at least twenty-three names, most of which are introduced in the hymn : that of Ca'm or Ca'ma signifies desire, a sense which it also bears in ancient and modern Persian; and it is possible, that the words Dipuc and Cupid, which have the same signification, may have the same origin; since we know, that the old Hetruscans, from whom great part of the Roman language and religion was derived, and whose system had a near affinity with that of the Persians and Indians, used to write their lines alternately forwards and backwards, as furrows are made by the plough; and, though the two last letters of Cupido may be only the grammatical termination, as in libido and capedo, yet the primary root of cupio is contained in the three first letters. The seventh stanza alludes to the bold attempt of this deity to wound the great God Mahadeo, for which he was punished by a flame consuming his corporeal nature and reducing him to a mental essence; and hence his chief dominion is over the minds of mortals, of such deities as he is permitted to subdue.

THE HYMN.

WHAT potent God from Agra's orient bow'rs
Floats thro' the lucid air, whilst living flow'rs
With sunny twine the vocal arbours wreath,
And gales enamour'd heav'nly fragrance breathe ?

Hail pow'r unknown ! for at thy beck
Vales and groves their bosoms deck,
And ev'ry laughing blossom dresses
With gems of dew his musky tresses.
I feel, I feel thy genial flame divine,
And hallow thee and kiss thy shrine.

"Knowst thou not me ?" Celestial sounds I hear !
"Knowst thou not me ?" Ah, spare a mortal ear !
"Behold"—My swimming eyes entranc'd I raise,
But oh ! they shrink before th' excessive blaze.

Yes, son of Maya, yes, I know
Thy bloomy shafts and cany bow,
Cheeks with youthful glory beaming,
Locks in braids ethereal streaming,
Thy scaly standard, thy mysterious arms,
And all thy pains and all thy charms.

God of each lovely sight, each lovely sound,
Soul-kindling, world-inflaming, stary-crown'd,
Eternal Càma ! Or doth Smara bright,
Or proud Ananga give thee more delight ?

Whate'er thy seat, whate'er thy name,
Seas, earth, and air, thy reign proclaim :
Wreathy smiles and roseate pleasures
Are thy richest, sweetest treasures.

All animals to thee their tribute bring,
And hail thee universal king.

Thy consort mild, Affection ever true,
Graces thy side, her vest of glowing hue,
And in her train twelve blooming girls advance,
Touch golden strings and knit the mirthful dance.

Thy dreaded implements they bear,
And wave them in the scented air,
Each with pearls her neck adorning,
Brighter than the tears of morning.
Thy crimson ensign, which before them flies,
Decks with new stars the sapphire skies.

God of the flow'ry shafts and flow'ry bow,
Delight of all above and all below !
Thy lov'd companion, constant from his birth,
In heav'n clep'd Bessent, and gay Spring on earth,
Weaves thy green robe and flaunting bow'rs,
And from thy clouds draws balmy show'rs,
He with fresh arrows fills thy quiver,
(Sweet the gift and sweet the giver !)
And bids the many-plumed warbling throng
Burst the pent blossoms with their song.

He bends the luscious cane, and twists the string
With bees, how sweet ! but ah, how keen their sting !
He with five flow'rets tips thy ruthless darts,
Which thro' five senses pierce enraptur'd hearts :

Strong Chumpa, rich in od'rous gold,
Warm Amer, nurs'd in heav'nly mould,
Dry Nagkeser in silver smiling,
Hot Kiticum our sense beguiling,
And last, to kindle fierce the scorching flame,
Loveshaft, which gods bright Bela name.

Can men resist thy pow'r, when Krishen yields,
Krishen, who still in Matra's holy fields

Tunes harps immortal, and to strains divine
Dances by moonlight with the Gopia nine ?
But, when thy daring arm untam'd
At Mahadeo a loveshaft aim'd,
Heav'n shook, and, smit with stony wonder,
Told his deep dread in bursts of thunder,
Whilst on thy beauteous limbs an azure fire
Blaz'd forth, which never must expire.

O thou for ages born, yet ever young,
For ages may thy Bramin's lay be sung !
And, when thy lory spreads his em'rald wings
To waft thee high above the tow'rs of kings,
Whilst o'er thy throne the moon's pale light
Pours her soft radiance thro' the night,
And to each floating cloud discovers
The haunts of blest or joyless lovers,
Thy mildest influence to thy bard impart,
To warm, but not consume, his heart.

TWO HYMNS

TO

P R A C R I T I

THE ARGUMENT.

IN all our conversations with learned Hindus we find them enthusiastic admirers of Poetry, which they consider as a divine art, that had been practised for numberless ages in heaven, before it was revealed on earth by VÁLMÍĆ, whose great Heroic Poem is fortunately preserved : the Brahmans of course prefer that poetry, which they believe to have been actually inspired ; while the Vaidyas, who are in general perfect grammarians and good poets, but are not suffered to read any of the sacred writings except the Ayurvéda, or Body of Medical Tracts, speak with rapture of their innumerable popular poems, Epic, Lyric, and Dramatic, which were composed by men not literally inspired, but called, metaphorically, the sons of SERESWATĪ, or MINERVA ; among whom the Pandits of all sects, nations, and degrees are unanimous in giving the prize of glory to CÁLĪDÁŚA, who flourished in the court of VICRAMA'DITYA, fifty-seven years before Christ. He wrote several Dramas, one of which, entitled SACONTALA', is in my possession ; and the subject of it appears to be as interesting as the composition is beautiful : besides these he published the Méghadhūta, or cloud-messenger, and the Nalódaya, or rise of NALA, both elegant love-tales ; the Raghuvansa, an Heroic

Poem; and the Cuma'ra Sambhava, or birth of CUMA'RA, which supplied me with materials for the first of the following Odes. I have not indeed yet read it; since it could not be correctly copied for me during the short interval, in which it is in my power to amuse myself with literature; but I have heard the story told, both in Sanscrit and Persian, by many Pandits, who had no communication with each other; and their outline of it coincided so perfectly, that I am convinced of its correctness: that outline is here filled up, and exhibited in a lyric form, partly in the Indian, partly in the Grecian, taste; and great will be my pleasure, when I can again find time for such amusements, in reading the whole poem of C'ALI'DA'SA, and in comparing my descriptions with the original composition. To anticipate the story in a preface would be to destroy the interest, that may be taken in the poem; a disadvantage attending all prefatory arguments, of which those prefixed to the several books of TASSO, and to the Dramas of METASTASIO, are obvious instances; but, that any interest may be taken in the two hymns addressed to PRACRITI, under different names, it is necessary to render them intelligible by a previous explanation of the mythological allusions, which could not but occur in them.

ISWARA or I'SA, and I'SA'NI or I'si', are unquestionably the OSIRIS and ISIS of Egypt; for, though neither a resemblance of names, nor a similarity of character, would separately prove the identity of Indian and Egyptian Deities, yet, when they both concur, with the addition of numberless corroborating circumstances, they form a proof little short of demonstration. The female divinity, in the mythological systems of the East, represents the active power of the male; and that I'si' means active nature, appears evidently from the word s'á'cta, which is derived from sa'cti, or power, and applied to those Hindus, who direct their adoration principally to that goddess: this feminine character of PRACRITI, or created nature, is so familiar in most languages, and even in our own, that the gravest English writers, on the most serious subjects of religion and philosophy, speak of her operations, as if she were actually an animated being; but such personifications are easily misconceived by the multitude, and have a strong tendency to polytheism. The principal operations of nature are, not the absolute annihilation and new creation of what we call material substances, but the temporary extinction and reproduction, or, rather in one word, the transmutation, of forms; whence the epithet Polymorphos is aptly given to nature by European philosophers: hence ISWARA, SIVA, HARA (for those are his names and near a thousand more), united with I'SI', represent the secondary causes, whatever they may be, of natural phenomena, and principally those of temporary destruction and regeneration; but the Indian ISIS appears in a variety of characters, especially in those of PA'RVATI', CA'LI', DURGA', and BHA'VANI', which bear a strong resemblance to the JUNO of HOMER, to HECATE, to the armed PALLAS, and to the Lucretian VENUS.

The name PA'RVATI' took its rise from a wild poetical fiction. HIMA'LAYA, or the Mansion of Snow, is the title given by the Hindus to that vast chain of mountains, which limits India to the north, and embraces it with its eastern and western arms, both extending to the ocean; the former of those arms is called Chandraséc'hara, or the Moon's Rock; and the second, which reaches as far west as the mouths of the Indus, was named by the ancients Montes Parveti. These hills are held sacred by the Indians, who suppose them to be the terrestrial haunt of the God I'SWARA. The mountain Himálaya, being personified, is represented as a powerful monarch, whose wife was ME'NA': their daughter is named PA'RVATI', or Mountain-born, and DURGA', or of difficult access; but the Hindus believe her to have been married to SIVA in a pre-existent state, when she bore the name of SATI'. The daughter of HIMA'LAYA had two sons; GANE'S'A, or the Lord of Spirits, adored as the wisest of Dei-ties, and always invoked at the beginning of every literary work, and CUMA RA, SCANDA, or CA'RTICE'YA, commander of the celestial armies.

The pleasing fiction of CA'MA, the Indian CUPID, and his friend VASANTA, or the Spring, has been the subject of another poem; and here it must be remembered, that the God of Love is named also SMARA, CANDARPA, and ANANGA. One of his arrows is called Mellicà, the Nyctanthes of our Botanists, who very unadvisedly reject the vernacular names of most Asiatic plants: it is beautifully introduced by CA'LIDA'SA into this lively couplet:

Mellicāmuculè bhāti gunjanmattamadhuvratah,

Prayānè panchabānasya sanc'hamāpūrayanniva.

'The intoxicated bee shines and murmurs in the fresh-blown Mellicà, like him who gives breath to a white conch in the procession of the God with five arrows.'

A critic, to whom CA'LIDA'SA repeated this verse, observed, that the comparison was not exact: since the bee sits on the blossom itself, and does not murmur at the end of the tube, like him who blows a conch: 'I was aware of that, said the poet, and, therefore, described the bee as intoxicated: a drunken musician would blow the shell at the wrong end.' There was more than wit in this answer: it was a just rebuke to a dull critic; for poetry delights in general images, and is so far from being a perfect imitation, that a scrupulous exactness of descriptions and similes, by leaving nothing for the imagination to supply, never fails to diminish or destroy the pleasure of every reader, who has an imagination to be gratified.

It may here be observed, that Nymphæa, not Lotos, is the generic name in Europe of the flower consecrated to ISIS: the Persians know by the name of Nilúfer that species of it, which the Botanists ridiculously call Nelumbo, and which is remarkable for its curious pericarpium, where each of the seeds contains in miniature the leaves of a perfect vegetable. The lotos of HOMER was probably the sugar-cane, and that of LINNÆUS is a papilionaceous plant ; but he gives the same name to another species of the Nymphæa ; and the word is so constantly applied among us in India to the Niláfer, that any other would be hardly intelligible : the blue lotos grows in Cashmár and in Persia, but not in Bengal, where we see only the red and the white ; and hence occasion is taken to feign, that the lotos of Hindustan was dyed crimson by the blood of SIVA.

CUVE'RA, mentioned in the fourteenth stanza, is the God of Wealth, supposed to reside in a magnificent city, called Alacá ; and VRIHASPATI, or the Genius of the planet Jupiter, is the preceptor of the Gods in Swerga or the firmament : he is usually represented as their orator, when any message is carried from them to one of the three superior Deities.

The lamentations of RETI', the wife of CAMA, fill a whole book in the Sanscrit poem, as I am informed by my teacher, a learned Vaidya ; who is restrained only from reading the book, which contains a description of the nuptials ; for the ceremonies of a marriage where BRAHMA' himself officiated as the father of the bridegroom, are too holy to be known by any but Bra'hmans.

The achievements of DURGA' in her martial character as the patroness of Virtue, and her battle with a demon in the shape of a buffalo, are the subject of many episodes in the Pura'nas and Ca'vyas, or sacred and popular poems ; but a full account of them would have destroyed the unity of the Ode, and they are barely alluded to in the last stanza.

It seemed proper to change the measure, when the goddess was to be addressed as BHAVA'NI, or the power of fecundity ; but such a change, though very common in Sanscrit, has its inconveniences in European poetry : a distinct Hymn is therefore appropriated to her in that capacity ; for the explanation of which we need only premise, that LACSHMI' is the Goddess of Abundance ; that the Cétaca is a fragrant and beautiful plant of the Diacian kind, known to Botanists by the name of Pandanus ; and that the Du'rgótsava, or great festival of BHAVA'NI at the close of the rains, ends, in throwing the image of the goddess into the Ganges or other sacred water.

I am not conscious of having left unexplained any difficult allusion in the two poems ; and have only to add (lest European critics should consider a few of the images as inapplicable to Indian manners), that the ideas of snow and ice are familiar to the Hindus ; that the mountains of Hima'laya may be clearly discerned from a part of Bengal ; that the Grecian HÆMUS is the Sanscrit word haimas, meaning snowy ; and that funeral urns may be seen perpetually on the banks of the river.

The two Hymns are neither translations from any other poems, nor imitations of any ; and have nothing of PINDAR in them except the measures, which are nearly the same, syllable for syllable, with those of the first and second Nemean Odes : more musical stanzas might perhaps have been formed ; but, in every art, variety and novelty are considerable sources of pleasure. The style and manner of PINDAR have been greatly mistaken ; and, that a distinct idea of them may be conceived by such, as have not access to that inimitable poet in his own language, I cannot refrain from subjoining the first Nemean Ode*, not only in the same measure as nearly as possible, but almost word for word, with the original ; those epithets and phrases only being necessarily added, which are printed in Italic letters.

* See the first Nemean ode of Pindar.

THE HYMN

TO

D U R G A' .

I. 1.

FROM thee begins the solemn air,
Ador'd GANE'SA'; next, thy sire we praise
(Him, from whose red clust'ring hair
A new-born crescent sheds propitious rays,
Fair as GANGA's curling foam),
Dread I'SWARA; who lov'd o'er awful mountains,
Rapt in prescience deep, to roam,
But chiefly those, whence holy rivers gush,
Bright from their secret fountains,
And o'er the realms of BRAHMA' rush.

I. 2.

Rock above rock they ride sublime,
And lose their summits in blue fields of _day,
Fashion'd first, when rolling time,
Vast infant, in his golden cradle lay,
Bidding endless ages run
And wreath their giant heads in snows eternal
Gilt by each revolving sun;
Though neither morning beam, nor noontide glare,
In wintry sign or vernal,
Their adamant strength impair;

I. 3.

Nor e'en the fiercest summer heat
 Could thrill the palace, where their Monarch reign'd
 On his frost-impearled seat,
 (Such height had unremitted virtue gain'd !)
 HIMA'LAYA, to whom a lovely child,
 Sweet PARVATI, sage ME'NA bore,
 Who now, in earliest bloom, saw heav'n adore
 Her charms ; earth languish, till she smil'd.

II. 1.

But she to love no tribute paid ;
 Great ISWARA her pious cares engag'd :
 Him, who Gods and fiends dismay'd,
 She sooth'd with off'rings meek, when most he rag'd.
 On a morn, when, edg'd with light,
 The lake-born flow'rs their sapphire cups expanded
 Laughing at the scatter'd night,
 A vale remote and silent pool she sought,
 Smooth-footed, lotos-handed,
 And braids of sacred blossoms wrought ;

II. 2.

Not for her neck, which, unadorn'd,
 Bade envying antelopes their beauties hide :
 Art she knew not, or she scorn'd ;
 Nor had her language e'en a name for pride.
 To the God, who, fix'd in thought,
 Sat in a crystal cave new worlds designing,
 Softly sweet her gift she brought,
 And spread the garland o'er his shoulders broad,
 Where serpents huge lay twining,
 Whose hiss the round creation aw'd.

II. 3.

He view'd, half-smiling, half-severe,
 The prostrate maid—That moment through the rocks
 He, who decks the nurnle year

With CA'MA, hors'd on infant breezes flew :
 (Who knows not CA'MA, nature's king ?)
 VASANTA barb'd the shaft and fix'd the string ;
 The living bow CANDARPA drew.

III. 1.

Dire sacrilege ! The chosen reed,
 That SMARA pointed with transcendent art,
 Glanc'd with unimagin'd speed,
 And ting'd its blooming barb in SIVA's heart :
 Glorious flow'r, in heav'n proclaim'd
 Rich Mellicà, with balmy breath delicious,
 And on earth Nyctanthes nam'd !
 Some drops divine, that o'er the lotos blue
 Trickled in rills auspicious,
 Still mark it with a crimson hue.

III. 2.

Soon clos'd the wound its hallow'd lips ;
 But nature felt the pain : heav'n's blazing eye
 Sank absorb'd in sad eclipse,
 And meteors rare betray'd the trembling sky ;
 When a flame, to which compar'd
 The keenest lightnings were but idle flashes,
 From that orb all-piercing glar'd,
 Which in the front of wrathful HARA rolls,
 And soon to silver ashes
 Reduc'd th' inflamer of our souls.

III. 3.

VASANT, for thee a milder doom,
 Accomplice rash, a thund'ring voice decreed ;
 ' With'ring live in joyless gloom,
 While ten gay signs the dancing seasons lead.
 Thy flow'rs, perennial once, now annual made,
 The Fish and Ram shall still adorn ;
 But, when the Bull has rear'd his golden horn,

IV. 1.

The thunder ceas'd ; the day return'd ;
 But SIVA from terrestrial haunts had fled :
 Smit with rapt'rous love he burn'd,
 And sigh'd on gemm'd Caílása's viewless head.
 Lonely down the mountain steep,
 With flutt'ring heart, soft PARVATI descended ;
 Nor in drops of nectar'd sleep
 Drank solace through the night, but lay alarm'd,
 Lest her mean gifts offended
 The God her pow'rful beauty charm'd.

IV. 2.

All arts her sorr'wing damsels tried,
 Her brow, where wrinkled anguish low'r'd, to smoothe,
 And, her troubled soul to soothe,
 Sagacious ME'NA' mild reproof applied ;
 But nor art nor counsel sage,
 Nor e'en her sacred parent's tender chiding,
 Could her only pain assuage :
 The mountain drear she sought, in mantling shade
 Her tears and transports hiding,
 And oft to her adorer pray'd.

IV. 3.

There on a crag, whose icy rift
 Hurl'd night and horror o'er the pool profound,
 That with madding eddy swift
 Revengeful bark'd his rugged base around,-
 The beauteous hermit sat ; but soon perceiv'd
 A Bráhmén old before her stand,
 His rude staff quiv'ring in his wither'd hand,
 Who, falt'ring, ask'd for whom she griev'd.

V. 1.

' What graceful youth with accents mild,
 Eyes like twin stars, and lips like early morn,
 Has thv pensive heart beguil'd ?'

E'er beguil'd my guiltless heart :
 Him have I lost, who to these mountains hoary
 Bloom celestial could impart.
 Thee I salute, thee ven'rate, thee deplore;
 Dread SIVA, source of glory,
 Which on these rocks must gleam no more !"

V. 2.

' Rare object of a damsel's love,'
 The wizard bold replied, ' who, rude and wild,
 Leaves eternal bliss above,
 And roves o'er wastes where nature never smil'd,
 Mounted on his milkwhite bull !
 Seek INDRA with aërial bow victorious,
 Who from vases ever full
 Quaffs love and nectar ; seek the festive hall,
 Rich caves, and mansion glorious
 Of young CUVE'RA, lov'd by all ;

V. 3.

But spurn that sullen wayward God,
 That three-ey'd monster, hideous, fierce, untam'd,
 Unattir'd, ill-girt, unshod——
 Such fell impiety, the nymph exclaim'd,
 Who speaks, must agonize ; who hears, must die ;
 Nor can this vital frame sustain
 The pois'nous taint, that runs from vein to vein ;
 Death may atone the blasphemy.'

VI. 1.

She spoke, and o'er the rifted rocks
 Her lovely form with pious phrensy threw ;
 But beneath her floating locks
 And waving robes a thousand breezes flew,
 Knitting close their silky plumes,
 And in mid-air a downy pillow spreading ;
 Till, in clouds of rich perfumes
 Embalmed, they bore her to a mystic wood :

Where streams of glory shedding,
The well-feign'd Brāhmen, SIVA stood.

VI. 2.

The rest, my song conceal :
Unhallow'd ears the sacrilege might rue.
Gods alone to Gods reveal
In what stupendous notes th' immortals woo.
Straight the sons of light prepar'd
The nuptial feast, heav'n's opal gates unfolding,
Which th' empyreal army shar'd ;
And sage HIMA'LAYA shed blissful tears
With aged eyes beholding
His daughter empress of the spheres.

VI. 3.

Whilst ev'ry lip with nectar glow'd,
The bridegroom blithe his transformation told :
Round the mirthful goblets flow'd,
And laughter free o'er plains of ether roll'd :
' Thee too, like VISHNU, said the blushing queen,
Soft MA'YA', guileful maid, attends ;
But in delight supreme the phantasm ends ;
Love crowns the visionary scene.'

VII. 1.

Then rose VRIHASPATI, who reigns
Beyond red MANGALA's terrific sphere,
Wand'ring o'er cerulean plains :
His periods eloquent heav'n loves to hear
Soft as dew on waking flow'rs.
He told, how TA'RACA with snaky legions,
Envious of supernal pow'rs,
Had menac'd long old ME'RU's golden head,
And INDRA's beaming regions
With desolation wild had spread :

VII. 2.

How, when the Gods to BRAHMA' flew

" Sons, he said, from vengeance due
 The fiend must wield secure his fiery sword,
 (Thus th' unerring Will ordains),
 Till from the Great Destroyer's pure embraces,
 Knit in love's mysterious chains
 With her, who, daughter to the mountain-king,
 Yon snowy mansion graces,
 CUMA'RA, warrior-child, shall spring ;

VII. 3.

Who, bright in arms of heav'nly proof,
 His crest a blazing star, his diamond mail
 Colour'd in the rainbow's woof,
 The rash invaders fiercely shall assail,
 And, on a stately peacock borne, shall rush
 Against the dragons of the deep ;
 Nor shall his thund'ring mace insatiate sleep
 Till their infernal chief it crush."

VIII. 1.

'The splendid host with solemn state
 (Still spoke th' ethereal orator unblam'd)
 Reason'd high in long debate ;
 Till, through my counsel provident, they claim'd
 Hapless CA'MA's potent aid :
 At INDRA's wish appear'd the soul's inflamer,
 And, in vernal arms array'd,
 Engag'd (ah, thoughtless !) in the bold emprise
 To tame wide nature's tamer,
 And soften Him, who shakes the skies.

VIII. 2.

See now the God, whom all ador'd,
 An ashy heap, the jest of ev'ry gale !
 Loss by heav'n and earth deplor'd !
 For, love extinguish'd, earth and heav'n must fail.
 Mark, how RETI' bears his urn,

Points the flames—ah, see it burn !
 How ill the fun'ral with the feast agrees !
 Come, love's pale sister, pity ;
 Come, and the lover's wrath appease.'

VIII. 3.

Tumultuous passions, whilst he spoke,
 In heav'nly bosoms mix'd their bursting fire,
 Scorning frigid wisdom's yoke,
 Disdain, revenge, devotion, hope, desire :
 Then grief prevail'd ; but pity won the prize.
 Not SIVA could the charm resist :
 'Rise, holy love !' he said ; and kiss'd
 The pearls, that gush'd from DURGA's eyes.

IX. 1.

That instant through the blest abode,
 His youthful charms renew'd, ANANGA came ;
 High on em'rald plumes he rode
 With RETI' brighten'd by th' eluded flame ;
 Nor could young VASANTA mourn
 (Officious friend !) his darling lord attending,
 Though of annual beauty shorn :
 'Love-shafts enow one season shall supply,
 He menac'd unoffending,
 To rule the rulers of the sky.'

IX. 2.

With shouts the boundless mansion rang ;
 And, in sublime accord, the radiant quire
 Strains of bridal rapture sang
 With glowing conquest join'd and martial ire :
 'Spring to life, triumphant son,
 Hell's future dread, and heav'n's eternal wonder !
 Helm and flaming habergeon
 For thee, behold, immortal artists weave,
 And edge with keen blue thunder
 The blade that shall th' oppressor cleave'

IX. 3.

O DURGA', thou hast deign'd to shield
Man's feeble virtue with celestial might,
Gliding from yon jasper field,
And, on a lion borne, hast brav'd the sight ;
For, when the demon Vice thy realms defied,
And arm'd with death each arched horn,
Thy golden lance, O goddess mountain-born,
Touch but the pest—He roar'd and died.

THE HYMN

TO

B H A V A' N I

WHEN time was drown'd in sacred sleep,
And raven darkness brooded o'er the deep,
Reposing on primeval pillows
Of tossing billows,
The forms of animated nature lay ;
Till o'er the wild abyss, where love
Sat like a nestling dove,
From heav'n's dun concave shot a golden ray.
Still brighter and more bright it stream'd,
Then, like a thousand suns, resistless gleam'd ;
Whilst on the placid waters blooming,
The sky perfuming,
An op'ning Lotos rose, and smiling spread
His azure skirts and vase of gold,
While o'er his foliage roll'd
Drops, that impearl BHAVA'NI'S orient bed.
Mother of Gods, rich nature's queen,
Thy genial fire emblaz'd the bursting scene ;
For, on th' expanded blossom sitting,
With sun-beams knitting
That mystic veil for ever unremov'd,
Thou badst the softly kindling flame
Pervade this peopled frame,
And smiles, with blushes ting'd, the work approv'd.
Goddess, around thy radiant throne
The scaly shoals in spangled vesture shone,

Some slowly through green waves advancing,
 Some swiftly glancing,
 As each thy mild mysterious pow'r impell'd :
 E'en orcs and river-dragons felt
 Their iron bosoms melt
 With scorching heat ; for love the mightiest quell'd.

But straight ascending vapours rare
 O'er-canopied thy seat with lucid air,
 While, through young INDRA'S new dominions
 Unnumber'd pinions
 Mix'd with thy beams a thousand varying dyes,
 Of birds or insects, who pursued
 Their flying loves, or woo'd
 Them yielding, and with music fill'd the skies.

And now bedeck'd with sparkling isles
 Like rising stars, the watry desert smiles ;
 Smooth plains by waving forests bounded,
 With hillocks rounded,
 Send forth a shaggy brood, who, frisking light
 In mingled flocks or faithful pairs,
 Impart their tender cares :
 All animals to love their kind invite.

Nor they alone : those vivid gems,
 That dance and glitter on their leafy stems,
 Thy voice inspires, thy bounty dresses,
 Thy rapture blesses,
 From yon tall palm, who, like a sunborn king,
 His proud tiara spreads elate,
 To those, who throng his gate,
 Where purple chieftains vernal tribute bring.

A gale so sweet o'er GANGA' breathes,
 That in soft smiles her graceful cheek she wreathes.
 Mark, where her argent brow she raises,
 And blushing gazes

On yon fresh Cétaca, whose am'rous flow'r
Throws fragrance from his flaunting hair,
While with his blooming fair
He blends perfume, and multiplies the bow'r
Thus, in one vast eternal gyre,
Compact or fluid shapes, instinct with fire,
Lead, as they dance, this gay creation,
Whose mild gradation
Of melting tints illudes the visual ray :
Dense earth in springing herbage lives,
Thence life and nurture gives
To sentient forms, that sink again to clay.
Ye maids and youths on fruitful plains,
Where LACSHMĪ' revels and BHĀVĀNĪ' reigns,
Oh, haste ! oh, bring your flow'ry treasures,
To rapid measures
Tripping at eve these hallow'd banks along :
The pow'r, in yon dim shrines ador'd,
To primal waves restor'd,
With many a smiling race shall bless your song.

THE ARGUMENT.

SO many allusions to Hindu Mythology occur in the following Ode, that it would be scarce intelligible without an explanatory introduction, which, on every account and on all occasions, appears preferable to notes in the margin.

A distinct idea of the God, whom the poem celebrates, may be collected from a passage in the ninth section of the Gîtâ, where the sudden change of measure has an effect similar to that of the finest modulation :

té punyamásádyā suréndra lócam
asnanti divyān dividévabhoga'n,
té tam bhuctwá'swergalócam visa'lam
cshinè punyè mertyalócam visanti

“These, having through virtue reached the mansion of the king of sura's, feast on the exquisite heavenly food of the Gods : they, who have enjoyed this lofty region of SWERGA, but whose virtue is exhausted, revisit the habitation of mortals.”

INDRA, therefore, or the King of Immortals, corresponds with one of the ancient Jupiters (for several of that name were worshipped in Europe), and particularly with Jupiter the Conductor, whose attributes are so nobly described by the Platonic Philosophers : one of his numerous titles is Dyupeti; or, in the nominative case before certain letters, Dyupetir which means the Lord of Heaven, and seems a more probable origin of the Hetruscan word than Juvans Pater ; as Diespiter was, probably, not the Father, but the Lord, of Day. He may be considered as the Jove of ENNIUS in his memorable line :

‘Aspice hoc sublime candens, quem invocant omnes Jovem,’
where the poet clearly means the firmament, of which INDRA elements, with inferior Genii under his command ; and is conceived to govern the Eastern quarter of the world, but to preside, like the Genius or Agathodæmon of the Ancients, over the celestial bands, which are stationed on the summit of ME'RU, or the Northpole, where he solaces the Gods with nectar and heavenly music : hence, perhaps, the Hindus, who give evidence, and the magistrates, who hear it, are directed to stand fronting the East or the North.

This imaginary mount is here feigned to have been seen in a vision at Vārānasī, very improperly called Bandris, which takes its name from two rivulets, that embrace the city ; and the bard, who was favoured with the sight, is supposed to have been VYA'SA, surnamed Dwaipāyana, or Dwelling in an Island ; who, if he really composed the Gita, makes very flattering mention of himself in the tenth chapter. The plant Latā, which he describes weaving a net round the mountain Mandara, is transported by a poetical liberty to Sumēru, which the great author of the Mahabha'rat has richly painted in four beautiful couplets : it is the generic name for a creeper, though represented here as a species, of which many elegant varieties are found in Aṣia.

The Genii named Cinnara's are the male dancers in Swerga, or the Heaven of INDRA ; and the Apsara's are his dancing-girls, answering to the fairies of the PERSIANS, and to the damsels called in the KORAN hhūru'lūyūn, or with antelopes' eyes. For the story of Chitrarat'ha, the chief musician of the Indian paradise, whose painted car was burned by ARJUN, and for that of the Chaturdesaretna, or fourteen gems, as they are called, which were produced by churning the ocean, the reader must be referred to Mr. WILKINS's learned annotations on his accurate version of the Bhagavadgītā. The fable of the pomegranate-flower is borrowed from the popular mythology of Népāl and Tibet.

In this poem the same form of stanza is repeated with variations, on a principle entirely new in modern lyric poetry, which on some future occasion may be fully explained.

THE HYMN.

BUT ah ! what glories yon blue vault emblaze ?
What living meteors from the zenith stream ?
Or hath a rapt'rous dream
Perplex'd the isle-born bard in fiction's maze ?
He wakes ; he hears ; views no fancied rays.
'Tis INDRA mounted on the sun's bright beam ;
And round him revels his empyreal train :
How rich their tints ! how sweet their strain !

Like shooting stars around his regal seat
A veil of many-colour'd light they weave,
That eyes unholy would of sense bereave :
Their sparkling hands and lightly-tripping feet
Tir'd gales and panting clouds behind them leave.
With love of song and sacred beauty smit
The mystic dance they kint ;
Pursuing, circling, whirling, twining, leading,
Now chasing, now receding ;
Till the gay pageant from the sky descends
On charm'd Suméru, who with homage bends.

Hail, mountain of delight,
Palace of glory, bless'd by glory's king !
With prosp'ring shade embow'r me, whilst I sing
Thy wonders yet unreach'd by mortal flight.

Sky-piercing mountain ! In thy bow'rs of love
No tears are seen, save where medici'nal stalks
Weep drops balsamic o'er the silver'd walks ;
No complaints are heard, save where the restless dove
Of coy repulse and mild reluctance talks ;
Mantled in woven gold, with gems enchas'd,

With em'rald hillocks grac'd,
 From whose fresh laps in young fantastic mazes
 Soft crystal bounds and blazes
 Bathing the lithe convolvulus, that winds
 Obsequious, and each flaunting arbour binds.

When sapient BRAHMA this new world approv'd,
 On woody wings eight primal mountains mov'd ;
 But INDRA mark'd Suméru for his own,
 And motionless was ev'ry stone.

Dazzling the moon he rears his golden head :
 Nor bards inspir'd, nor heav'n's all-perfect speech
 Less may unhallow'd rhyme his beauties teach,
 Or paint the pavement which th' immortals tread ;
 Nor thought of man his awful height can reach :
 Who sees it, maddens ; who approaches, dies ;
 For, with flame-darting eyes,
 Around it roll a thousand sleepless dragons ;
 While from their diamond flagons
 The feasting Gods exhaustless nectar sip,
 Which glows and sparkles on each fragrant lip.

This feast, in mem'ry of the churned wave
 Great INDRA gave, when Amrit first was won
 From impious demons, who to Ma'yá's eyes
 Resign'd the prize, and rued the fight begun.

Now, while each ardent Cinnara persuades
 The soft-ey'd Apsarà to break the dance,
 And leads her loth, yet with love-beaming glance,
 To banks of marjoram and Champac shades,
 Celestial Genii tow'rd their king advance
 (So call'd by men, in heav'n Gandharva's nam'd)
 For matchless music fam'd.
 Soon, where the bands in lucid rows assemble,
 Flutes breathe, and citherns tremble ;
 Till CHITRARATHA sings—His painted car,
 Yet unconsum'd, gleams like an orient star.

Ev'ry stream his fall suspended :
Silence reign'd ; whose sole dominion
Soon was rais'd, but soon was ended.

He sings, how 'whilom from the troubled main
 The sov'reign elephant Aira'van sprang ;
 The breathing shell, that peals of conquest rang ;
 The parent cow, whom none implores in vain ;
 The milkwhite steed, the bow with deaf'ning clang ;
 The Goddesses of beauty, wealth, and wine ;
 Flow'rs, that unfading shine,
 NA'RA'YAN's gem, the moonlight's tender languish ;
 Blue venom, source of anguish ;
 The solemn leech, slow-moving o'er the strand,
 A vase of long-sought Amrit in his hand.

To soften human ills dread SIVA drank
 The pois'nous flood, that stain'd his azure neck ;
 The rest thy mansions deck,
 High Swerga, stor'd in many a blazing rank.

Thou, God of thunder, satst on Méru thron'd,
 Cloud-riding, mountain-piercing, thonsand-ey'd,
 With young PULO'MAJA', thy blooming bride,
 Whilst air and skies thy boundless empire own'd ;
 Hail, DYUPETIR, dismay to BALA's pride !
 Or speaks PURANDER, best thy martial fame,
 Or SACRA, mystic name ?
 With various praise in odes and hallow'd story
 Sweet bards shall hymn thy glory.
 Thou, VA'SAVA, from this unmeasur'd height
 Shedst pearl, shedst odours o'er the sons of light !

The Genius rested ; for his pow'ful art
 Had swell'd the monarch's heart with ardour vain,
 That threaten'd rash disdain, and seem'd to low'r
 On Gods of loftier pow'r and ampler reign.

He smil'd ; and, warbling in a softer mode,
 Sang 'the red light'ning, hail, and whelming rain

‘O’er Gócul green and Vraja’s nymph-lov’d plain
 By INDRA hurl’d, whose altars ne’er had glow’d,
 Since infant CRISHNA rul’d the rustic train
 Now thrill’d with terrou—Them the heav’nly child
 Call’d, and with looks ambrosial smil’d,
 Then with one finger rear’d the vast Govérdhen,
 Beneath whose rocky burden
 On pastures dry the maids and herdsmen trod :
 The Lord of thunder felt a mightier God !’

What furies potent modulation soothes !
 E’en the dilated heart of INDRA shrinks :
 His ruffled brow he smoothes,
 His lance half-rais’d with listless languor sinks.

A sweeter strain the sage musician chose :
 He told, how ‘SACHI, soft as morning light,
 Blythe SACHI, from her Lord INDRANI’ hight,
 When through clear skies their car ethereal rose,
 Fix’d on a garden trim her wand’ring sight,
 Where gay pomegranates, fresh with early dew,
 Vaunted their blossoms new :
 “Oh ! pluck, she said, yon gems, which nature dresses
 To grace my darker tresses.”
 In form a shepherd’s boy, a God in soul,
 ‘He hasten’d, and the bloomy treasure stole.

The reckless peasant, who those glowing flow’rs,
 Hopeful of rubied fruit, had foster’d long,
 Seiz’d and with cordage strong
 Shackled the God, who gave him show’rs.

Straight from sev’n winds immortal Genii flew,
 Green Varuna, whom foamy waves obey,
 Bright Vahni flaming like the lamp of day,
Cuvéra sought by all, enjoyed by few,
Marut, who bids the winged breezes play,
 Stern Yama, ruthless judge, and Isa cold

With Nairrit mildly bold :
 They with the ruddy flash, that points his thunder,
 Rend his vain bands asunder.
 Th' exulting God resumes his thousand eyes,
 Four arms divine, and robes of changing dyes.'

Soft memory retrac'd the youthful scene :
 The thund'rer yielded to resistless charms,
 Then smil'd enamour'd on his blushing queen,
 And melted in her arms.

Such was the vision, which, on Varan's breast
 Or Asi pure with offer'd blossoms fill'd,
DWAIPA'YAN slumb'ring saw ; (thus NA'RED will'd)
 For waking eye such glory never bless'd,
 Nor waking ear such music ever thrill'd.
 It vanish'd with light sleep : he, rising, prais'd
 The guarded mount high-raised,
 And pray'd the thund'ring pow'r, that sheafy treasures,
 Mild show'rs and vernal pleasures,
 The lab'ring youth in mead and vale might cheer,
 And cherish'd herdsmen bless th' abundant year.

Thee, darter of the swift blue bolt, he sang ;
 Sprinkler of genial dews and fruitful rains
 O'er hills and thirsty plains !
 ' When through the waves of war thy charger sprang,
 Each rock rebellow'd and each forest rang,
 Till vanquish'd Asurs felt avenging pains.
 Send o'er their seats the snake, that never dies,
 But waft the virtuous to thy skies !'

THE ARGUMENT.

A PLAUSIBLE opinion has been entertained by learned men, that the principal source of idolatry among the ancients was their enthusiastic admiration of the Sun ; and that, when the primitive religion of mankind was lost amid the distractions of establishing regal government, or neglected amid the allurements of vice, they ascribed to the great visible luminary, or to the wonderful fluid, of which it is the general reservoir, those powers of pervading all space and animating all nature, which their wiser ancestors had attributed to one eternal MIND, by whom the substance of fire had been created as an inanimate and secondary cause of natural phenomena. The Mythology of the East confirms this opinion ; and it is probable, that the triple Divinity of the Hindus was originally no more than a personification of the Sun, whom they call Treyitenu, or Three-bodied, in his triple capacity of producing forms by his genial heat; preserving them by his light, or destroying them by the concentrated force of his igneous matter : this, with the wilder conceit of a female power united with the Godhead, and ruling nature by his authority, will account for nearly the whole system of Egyptian, Indian, and Grecian polytheism, distinguished from the sublime Theology of the Philosophers, whose understandings were too strong to admit the popular belief, but whose influence was too weak to reform it.

SU'RYA, PHŒBUS of European heathens, has near fifty names or epithets in the Sanscrit language ; most of which, or at least the meanings of them, are introduced in the following Ode ; and every image, that seemed capable of poetical ornament, has been selected from books of the highest authority among the Hindus : the title Arca is very singular ; and it is remarkable, that the Tibetians represent the Sun's car in the form of a boat.

It will be necessary to explain a few other particulars of the Hindu Mythology, to which allusions are made in the poem. SOMA, or the Moon, is a male Deity in the Indian system, as Mona was, I believe, among the Saxons, and Lunus among some of the nations, who settled in Italy : his titles also, with one or two of the ancient fables, to which they refer, are exhibited in the second stanza. Most of the Lunar mansions are believed to be the daughters of Casyapa, the first production of Brahmā's head, and from their names are derived those of the twelve months, who are here feigned to have married as many constellations : this primeval Bra'hman and Vinatā are also supposed to have been the parents of Arun, the charioteer of the Sun, and of the bird Garuda, the eagle of the great Indian Jove, one of whose epithets is Madhā'va.

After this explanation the Hymn will have few or no difficulties, especially if the reader has perused and studied the Bhagavadgītā, with which our literature has been lately enriched, and the fine episode from the Mahābhārata, on the production of the Amrita, which seems to be almost wholly astronomical, but abounds with poetical beauties. Let the following description of the demon Rahu, decapitated by Nārāyaṇ, be compared with similar passages in Hesiod and Milton :

tach ch'hailasringapratiman da'navasya sirō mahat
chacrach'hinnam c'hamutpatya nena'diti bhayancaram, tat cabandham pepdāsya visp'hurad dharani'talē
sapervatavanadwīpān daityasya'campayanmahim.

THE HYMN.

FOUNTAIN of living light,
That o'er all nature streams,
Of this vast microcosm both nerve and soul ;
Whose swift and subtil beams,
Eluding mortal sight,
Pervade, attract, sustain th' effulgent whole,
Unite, impel, dilate, calcine,
Give to gold its weight and blaze,
Dart from the diamond many-tinted rays,
Condense, protrude, transform, concoct, refine
The sparkling daughters of the mine ;
Lord of the lotos, father, friend, and king,
O Sun, thy pow'rs I sing :
Thy substance Indra with his heav'nly bands
Nor sings nor understands ;
Nor e'en the Védas three to man explain
Thy mystic orb triform, though Brahma' tun'd the strain.

Thou, nectar-beaming Moon,
Regent of dewy night,
From yon black roe, that in thy bosom sleeps,
Fawn-spotted Sasin hight ;
Wilt thou desert so soon
Thy night-flow'rs pale, whom liquid odour steeps,
And Oshadhi's transcendent beam
Burning in the darkest glade ?
Will no lov'd name thy gentle mind persuade
Yet one short hour to shed thy cooling stream ?
But ah ! we court a passing dream :

Our pray'r nor Indu nor Hima'nsu hears ;
 He fades ; he disappears—
 E'en Casyapa's gay daughters twinkling die,
 And silence lulls the sky,
 Till Châtacs twitter from the moving brake,
 And sandal-breathing gales on beds of ether wake.

Burst into song, ye spheres ;
 A greater light proclaim,
 And hymn, concentric orbs, with sev'nfold chime
 The God with many a name ;
 Nor let unhallow'd ears
 Drink life and rapture from your charm sublime :
 ' Our bosoms, Aryama inspire,
 Gem of heav'n, and flow'r of day,
Vivaswat, lancer of the golden ray,
Divâcara, pure source of holy fire,
 Victorious 'Ra'ma's fervid fire,
 Dread child of Aditi, Martunda bless'd,
 Or Sûra be address'd,
Ravi, or Mihira, or Bha'nu bold,
 Or Arca, title old,
 Or Heridaswa drawn by green-hair'd steeds,
 Or Carmasacshi keen, attesting secret deeds.

What fiend, what monster fierce
 E'er durst thy throne invade ?
 Malignant Ra'hu. Him thy wakeful sight,
 That could the deepest shade
 Of snaky Narac pierce,
 Mark'd quaffing nectar ; when by magic sleight
 A Sura's lovely form he wore,
 Rob'd in light, with lotos crown'd,
 What time th' immortals peerless treasures found
 On the churn'd Ocean's gem-bespangled shore,
 And Mandar's load the tortoise bore :
 Thy voice reveal'd the daring sacrilege ;

Then, by the deathful edge
Of bright Sudersan cleft, his dragon head
Dismay and horror spread
Kicking the skies, and struggling to impair
The radiance of thy robes, and stain thy golden hair.

With smiles of stern disdain
Thou, sov'reign victor, seest
His impious rage : soon from the mad assault
Thy coursers fly releas'd ;
Then toss each verdant mane,
And gallop o'er the smooth aerial vault ;
Whilst in charm'd Gócul's od'rous vale
Blue-ey'd Yamunà descends
Exulting, and her tripping tide suspends,
The triumph of her mighty sire to hail :
So must they fall, who Gods assail !
For now the demon rues his rash emprise,
Yet, bello'wing blasphemies
With pois'nous throat, for horrid vengeance thirsts,
And oft with tempest bursts,
As oft repell'd he groans in fiery chains,
And o'er the realms of day unvanquish'd Súrya reigns.'

Ye clouds, in wavy wreathes
Your dusky van unfold ;
O'er dimpled sands, ye surges, gently flow,
With sapphires edg'd and gold !
Loose-tressed morning breathes,
And spreads her blushes with expansive glow ;
But chiefly where heav'n's op'ning eye
Sparkles at her saffron gate,
How rich, how regal in his orient state !
Erelong he shall imblaze th' unbounded sky :
The fiends of darkness yelling fly ;
While birds of liveliest note and lightest wing
The rising daystar sing,

Who skirts th' horizon with a blazing line
 Of topazes divine ;
 E'en, in their prelude, brighter and more bright,
 Flames the red east, and pours insufferable light*.
 First o'er blue hills appear,
 With many an agate hoof
 And pasterns fring'd with pearl, sev'n coursers green ;
 Nor boasts yon arched woof,
 That girds the show'ry sphere,
 Such heav'n-spun threads of colour'd light serene,
 As tinge the reins, which Arun guides,
 Glowing with immortal grace,
 Young Arun, loveliest of Vinatian race,
 Though younger He, whom Mádhava bestrides,
 When high on eagle-plumes he rides :
 But oh ! what pencil of a living star
 Could paint that gorgeous car,
 In which, as in an ark supremely bright,
 The lord of boundless light
 Ascending calm o'er th' empyrean sails,
 And with ten thousand beams his awful beauty veils.

Behind the glowing wheels
 Six jocund seasons dance,
 A radiant month in each quick-shifting hand ;
 Alternate they advance,
 While buxom nature feels
 The grateful changes of the frolic band :
 Each month a constellation fair
 Knit in youthful wedlock holds,
 And o'er each bed a varied sun unfolds,
 Lest one vast blaze our visual force impair,
 A canopy of woven air.

Vasanta blythe with many a laughing flow'r
 Decks his Candarpa's bow'r ;
 The drooping pastures thirsty Grishma dries,

* See GRAY's Letters, p. 382, 4to. and the note.

Till Versha bids them rise ;
 Then Sarat with full sheaves the champaign fills,
 Which Sisira bedews, and stern Hémanta chills.

Mark, how th' all-kindling orb
 Meridian glory gains !
 Round Méru's breathing zone he winds oblique
 O'er pure cerulean plains :
 His jealous flames absorb
 All meaner lights, and unresisted strike
 The world with rapt'rous joy and dread.
 Ocean, smit with melting pain,
 Shrinks, and the fiercest monster of the main
 Mantles in caves profound his tusky head
 With sea-weeds dank and coral spread :
 Less can mild earth and her green daughters bear
 The noon's wide-wasting glare ;
 To rocks the panther creeps ; to woody night
 The vulture steals his flight ;
 E'en cold caméléons pant in thickets dun,
 And o'er the burning grit th' unwinged locusts run !

But when thy foaming steeds
 Descend with rapid pace
 Thy fervent axle hast'ning to allay,
 What majesty, what grace
 Dart o'er the western meads
 From thy relenting eye their blended ray !
 Soon may th' undazzled sense behold
 Rich as Vishnu's diadem,
 Or Amrit sparkling in an azure gem,
 Thy horizontal globe of molten gold,
 Which pearl'd and rubied clouds infold.
 It sinks ; and myriads of diffusive dyes
 Stream o'er the tissued skies,
 Till Sóma smiles, attracted by the song
 Of many a plumed throng

In groves, meads, vales ; and, whilst he glides above,
Each bush and dancing bough quaffs harmony and love.

Then roves thy poet free,

Who with no borrow'd art
Dares hymn thy pow'r, and durst provoke thy blaze,
But felt thy thrilling dart ;
And now, on lowly knee,
From him, who gave the wound, the balsam prays.
Herbs, that assuage the fever's pain,
Scatter from thy rolling car,
Cull'd by sage Aswin and divine Cuma'r ;
And, if they ask, " What mortal pours the strain ?"
Say (for thou seest earth, air, and main)
Say : " From the bosom of yon silver isle,
Where skies more softly smile,
He came ; and, lisping our celestial tongue,
Though not from Brahma's sprung,
Draws orient knowledge from its fountains pure,
Through caves obstructed long, and paths too long obscure.

Yes ; though the Sanscrit song
Be strown with fancy's wreathes,
And emblems rich, beyond low thoughts refin'd,
Yet heav'nly truth it breathes
With attestation strong,
That, loftier than thy sphere, th' Eternal Mind,
Unmov'd unrival'd undefil'd,
Reigns with providence benign:
He still'd the rude abyss, and bade it shine
(While Sapience with approving aspect mild Saw the stupendous work, and smil'd) ;
Next thee, his flaming minister, bade rise
O'er young and wondering skies.
Since thou, great orb, with all-enlight'ning ray
Rulest the golden day,
How far more glorious He, who said serene,
Be, and thou wast—Himself unform'd, unchang'd, unseen

THE ARGUMENT.

MOST of the allusions to Indian Geography and Mythology, which occur in the following Ode to the Goddess of Abundance have been explained on former occasions ; and the rest are sufficiently clear. LACSHMI', or SRI', the CERES of India, is the preserving power of nature, or, in the language of allegory, the consort of VISHNU or HERI, a personification of the divine goodness ; and her origin is variously deduced in the several purāna's, as we might expect from a system wholly figurative and emblematical. Some represent her as the daughter of BHRIGU, a son of BRAHMA' ; but, in the Mā'rcandēya Purān, the Indian Isis, or Nature, is said to have assumed three transcendent forms, according to her three guna's or qualities, and, in each of them, to have produced a pair of divinities, BRAHMA' and LACSHMI', MAHE'SA and SERESWATI', VISHNU and CA'LI' ; after whose intermarriage, BRAHMA' and SERESWATI' formed the mundane Egg, which MAHE'SA and CA'LI' divided into halves ; and VISHNU together with LACSHMI' preserved it from destruction : a third story supposes her to have sprung from the Sea of milk, when it was churned on the second incarnation of HERI, who is often painted reclining on the serpent ANANTA, the emblem of eternity ; and this fable, whatever may be the meaning of it, has been chosen as the most poetical. The other names of SRI', or Prosperity, are HERIPRIYA', PEDMA'LAYA', or PEDMA' and CAMALA ; the first implying the wife of VISHNU, and the rest derived from the names of the Lotos. As to the tale of SUDA'MAN, whose wealth is proverbial among the Hindus, it is related at considerable length in the Bhāgavat, or great purān on the Achievements of CRISHNA : the Brahmen, who read it with me, was frequently stopped by his tears. We may be inclined perhaps to think, that the wild fables of idolaters are not worth knowing, and that we may be satisfied with mispending our time in learning the Pagan Theology of old Greece and Rome ; but we must consider, that the allegories contained in the Hymn to LACSHMI constitute at this moment the prevailing religion of a most extensive and celebrated Empire, and are devoutly believed by many millions, whose industry adds to the revenue of Britain, and whose manners, which are interwoven with their religious opinions, nearly affect all Europeans, who reside among them.

THE HYMN

DAUGHTER of Ocean and primeval Night,
Who, fed with moonbeams dropping silver dew,
And cradled in a wild wave dancing light,
Saw'st with a smile new shores and creatures new,
Thee, Goddess, I salute ; thy gifts I sing,

And, not with idle wing,
Soar from this fragrant bow'r through tepid skies,
Ere yet the steeds of noon's effulgent king
Shake their green manes and blaze with rubied eyes :
Hence, floating o'er the smooth expense of day,

Thy bounties I survey,
See through man's oval realm thy charms display'd,
See clouds, air, earth, performing thy behest,
Plains by soft show'rs, thy tripping handmaids, dress'd,
And fruitful woods, in gold and gems array'd,
Spangling the mingled shade ;

While autumn boon his yellow ensign rears,
And stores the world's true wealth in rip'ning ears.

But most that central tract thy smile adorns,
Which old Himāla clips with fast'ring arms,
As with a waxing moon's half-circling horns,
And shields from bandits fell, or worse alarms
Of Tatar horse from Yunan late subdued,

Or Bactrian bowmen rude ;
Snow-crown'd Himāla, whence, with wavy wings
Far spread, as falcons o'er their nestlings brood,
Fam'd Brahmaputra joy and verdure brings, ³
And Sindhu's five-arm'd flood from Cashghar hastes,
To cheer the rocky wastes,
Through western this and that through orient plains ;

While bluish Yamunā between them streams,
 And Gangā pure with sunny radiance gleams,
 Till Vānī, whom a russet ochre stains,

 Their destin'd confluence gains :
 Then flows in mazy knot the triple pow'r
 O'er laughing Magadh and the vales of Gour.

Not long inswath'd the sacred infant lay
 (Celestial forms full soon their prime attain) :
 Her eyes, oft darted o'er the liquid way,
 With golden light emblaz'd the darkling main ;
 And those firm breasts, whence all our comforts well,

 Rose with enchanting swell ;
 Her loose hair with the bounding billows play'd,
 And caught in charming toils each pearly shell,
 That idling through the surgy forest stray'd ;
 When ocean suffer'd a portentous change,
 Toss'd with convulsion strange ;
 For lofty Mandar from his base was torn,
 With streams, rocks, woods, by Gods and Demons whirl'd,
 While round his craggy sides the mad spray curl'd,
 Hugh mountain, by the passive Tortoise borne :

 Then sole, but not forlorn,
 Shipp'd in a flow'r, that balmy sweets exhal'd,
 O'er waves of dulcet cream PEDMA'LA' sail'd.

So name the Goddess from her Lotos blue,
 Or CAMALA', if more auspicious deem'd :
 With many-petal'd wings the blossom flew,
 And from the mount a flutt'ring sea-bird seem'd,
 Till on the shore it stopp'd, the heav'n-lov'd shore,

 Bright with unvalued store
 Of gems marine by mirthful INDRA won ;
 But she, (what brighter gem had shone before ?)
 No bride for old MA'RI'CHA's frolic son,
 On azure HERI fix'd her prosp'ring eyes :

 Love bade the bridegroom rise ;
 Straight o'er the deep, then dimpling smooth, he rush'd ;

And tow'rd th' unmeasur'd snake, stupendous bed,
 The world's great mother, not reluctant, led :
 All nature glów'd, whene'er she smil'd or blush'd,
 The king of serpents hush'd
 His thousand heads, where diamond mirrors blaz'd,
 That multiplied her image, as he gaz'd.

Thus multiplied, thus wedded, they pervade,
 In varying myriads of ethereal forms,
 This pendent Egg by dovelike MA'YA' laid,
 And quell MAHE'SA's ire, when most it storms ;
 Ride on keen lightning and disarm its flash,

 Or bid loud surges lash
 Th' impassive rock, and leave the rolling barque
 With oars unshatter'd milder seas to dash ;
 And oft, as man's unnumber'd woes they mark,
 They spring to birth in some high-favour'd line,
 Half human, half divine,

And tread life's maze transfigur'd, unimpair'd :
 As when, through blest Vrinda'van's od'rous grove,
 They deign'd with hinds and village girls to rove,
 And myrth or toil in field or dairy shar'd,

 As lowly rustics far'd :
 Blythe RA'DHA' she, with speaking eyes, was nam'd,
 He CRISHNA, lov'd in youth, in manhood fam'd.

Though long in Mathura' with milkmaids bred,
 Each bush attuning with his past'ral flute,
 ANANDA's holy steers the Herdsman fed,
 His nobler mind aspir'd to nobler fruit :
 The fiercest monsters of each brake or wood

 His youthful arm withstood,
 And from the rank mire of the stagnant lake
 Drew the crush'd serpent with ensanguin'd hood ;
 Then, worse than rav'ning beast or fenny snake,
 A ruthless king his pond'rous mace laid low,
 And heav'n approv'd the blow :

in bow'r or wattled cabin pent,
 By rills he scorn'd and flow'ry banks to dwell,
 His pipe lay tuneless, and his wreathy shell
 With martial clangor hills and forests rent ;

On crimson wars intent
 He sway'd high Dwa'raça', that fronts the mouth
 Of gulfy Sindhu from the burning south.

A Brähmen young, who, when the heav'nly boy
 In Vraja green and scented Gócul play'd,
 Partook each transient care, each fitting joy,
 And hand in hand through dale or thicket stray'd;
 By fortune sever'd from the blissful seat,

Had sought a lone retreat ;
 Where in a costless hut sad hours he pass'd,
 Its mean thatch pervious to the daystar's heat,
 And fenceless from night's dew or pinching blast :
 Firm virtue he possess'd and vigorous health,

But they were all his wealth.
SUDA'MAN was he nam'd ; and many a year
 (If glowing song can life and honour give)
 From sun to sun his honour'd name shall live :
 Oft strove his consort wise their gloom to cheer,
 And hide the stealing tear ;
 But all her thrift could scarce each eve afford
 The needful sprinkling of their scanty board.

Now Fame, who rides on sunbeams, and conveys
 To woods and antres deep her spreading gleam,
 Illumin'd earth and heav'n with CRISHNA's praise :
 Each forest echoed loud the joyous theme,
 But keener joy SUDA'MAN's bosom thrill'd,

And tears ecstatic rill'd :
 " My friend, he cried, is monarch of the skies !"
 Then counsell'd she, who nought unseemly will'd :
 " Oh ! haste ; oh ! seek the God with lotos eyes ;
 The pow'r that stoops to soften human pain,

Though bashful penury his hope depress'd ;
 A tatter'd cincture was his only vest,
 And o'er his weaker shoulder loosely spread

Floated the mystic thread :

Secure from scorn the crowded paths he trode
 Through yielding ranks, and hail'd the Shepherd God.

“ Friend of my childhood, lov'd in riper age,
 A dearer guest these mansions never grac'd :
 O meek in social hours, in council sage ! ”
 So spake the Warriour, and his neck embrac'd ;
 And e'en the Goddess left her golden seat

Her lord's compeer to greet :

He charm'd, but prostrate on the hallow'd floor,
 Their purpled vestment kiss'd and radiant feet ;
 Then from a small fresh leaf, a borrow'd store
 (Such off'rings e'en to mortal kings are due)

Of modest rice he drew.

Some proffer'd grains the soft-cy'd Hero ate,
 And more had eaten, but, with placid mien,
 Bright RUCMINI' (thus name th' all-bounteous Queen)
 Exclaim'd : “ Ah, hold ! enough for mortal state ! ”

Then grave on themes elate

Discoursing, or on past adventures gay,
 They clos'd with converse mild the rapt'rous day.

At smile of dawn dismiss'd, ungifted, home
 The hermit plodded, till sublimely rais'd
 On granite columns many a sumptuous dome
 He view'd, and many a spire, that richly blaz'd,
 And seem'd, impurpled by the blush of morn,

The lowlier plains to scorn

Imperious : they, with conscious worth serene,
 Laugh'd at vain pride, and bade new gems adorn
 Each rising shrub, that clad them. Lovely scene
 And more than human ! His astonish'd sight

Drank deep the strange delight :

He saw brisk fountains dance, crisp riv'lets wind
 O'er borders trim, and round inwoven bow'rs,
 Where sportive creepers, threading ruby flow'rs
 On em'rald stalks, each vernal arch intwin'd,
 Luxuriant though confin'd;
 And heard sweet-breathing gales in whispers tell
 From what young bloom they sipp'd their spicy smell.

Soon from the palace-gate in broad array
 A maiden legion, touching tuneful strings,
 Descending strow'd with flow'rs the brighten'd way,
 And straight, their jocund van in equal wings
 Unfolding, in their vacant centre show'd
 Their chief, whose vesture glow'd
 With carbuncles and smiling pearls atween;
 And o'er her head a veil translucent flow'd,
 Which, dropping light, disclos'd a beauteous queen,
 Who, breathing love, and swift with timid grace,
 Sprang to her lord's embrace
 With ardent greeting and sweet blandishment;
 His were the marble tow'rs, th' officious train,
 The gems unequal'd and the large domain:
 When bursting joy its rapid stream had spent,
 The stores, which heav'n had lent,
 He spread unsparing, unattach'd employ'd,
 With meekness view'd, with temp'rate bliss enjoy'd.

Such were thy gifts, PEDMA'LA', such the pow'r!
 For, when thy smile irradiates yon blue fields,
 Observant INDRA sheds the genial show'r,
 And pregnant earth her springing tribute yields
 Of spiry blades, that clothe the champaign dank,
 Or skirt the verd'rous bank,
 That in th' o'erflowing rill allays his thirst:
 Then, rising gay in many a waving rank,
 The stalks redundant into laughter burst;
 The rivers broad, like busy should'ring bands,
 Clap their applauding hands;

The marish dances and the forest sings ;
 The vaunting trees their bloomy banners rear ;
 And shouting hills proclaim th' abundant year,
 That food to herds, to herdsmen plenty brings,
 And wealth to guardian kings.

Shall man unthankful riot on thy stores ?
 Ah, no ! he bends, he blesses, he adores.

But, when his vices rank thy frown excite,
 Excessive show'rs the plains and valleys drench,
 Or warping insects heath and coppice blight,
 Or drought unceasing, which no streams can quench,
 The germin shrivels or contracts the shoot,
 Or burns the wasted root :

Then fade the groves with gather'd crust imbrown'd,
 The hills lie gasping, and the woods are mute,
 Low sink the riv'lets from the yawning ground ;
 Till Famine gaunt her screaming pack lets slip,
 And shakes her scorpion whip ;
 Dire forms of death spread havock, as she flies,
 Pain at her skirts and Mis'ry by her side,
 And jabb'ring spectres o'er her traces glide ;
 The mother clasps her babe, with livid eyes,
 Then, faintly shrieking, dies :
 He drops expiring, or but lives to feel
 The vultures bick'ring for their horrid meal.

From ills, that, painted, harrow up the breast,
 (What agonies, if real, must they give !)
 Preserve thy vot'ries : be their labours blest !
 Oh ! bid the patient Hindu rise and live.
 His erring mind, that wizard lore beguiles
 Clouded by priestly wiles,
 To senseless nature bows for nature's God.
 Now, stretch'd o'er ocean's vast from happier isles,
 He sees the wand of empire, not the rod :
 Ah, may those beams, that western skies illume,
 Disperse th' unholy gloom !

Meanwhile may laws, by myriads long rever'd,
Their strife appease, their gentler claims decide ;
So shall their victors, mild with virtuous pride,
To many a cherish'd grateful race endear'd,

With temper'd love be fear'd :

Though mists profane obscure their narrow ken,
They err, yet feel ; though pagans, they are men.

THE ARGUMENT.

A COMPLETE introduction to the following Ode would be no less than a full comment on the VAYDS and PURA'NS of the HINDUS, the remains of Egyptian and Persian Theology, and the tenets of the Ionic and Italic Schools; but this is not the place for so vast a disquisition. It will be sufficient here to premise, that the inextricable difficulties attending the vulgar notion of material substances, concerning which induced many of the wisest among the Ancients, and some of the most enlightened among the Moderns, to believe, that the whole Creation was rather an energy than a work, by which the Infinite Being, who is present at all times in all places, exhibits to the minds of his creatures a set of perceptions, like a wonderful picture or piece of music, always varied, yet always uniform; so that all bodies and their qualities exist, indeed, to every wise and useful purpose, but exist only as far as they are perceived; a theory no less pious than sublime, and as different from any principle of Atheism, as the brightest sunshine differs from the blackest midnight. This illusive operation of the Deity the Hindu philosophers call MA'YA', or Deception; and the word occurs in this sense more than once in the commentary on the Rig Vayd, by the great VASISHTHA, of which Mr. HALHED has given us an admirable specimen.

The first stanza of the Hymn represents the sublimest attributes of the Supreme Being, and the three forms, in which they most clearly appear to us, Power, Wisdom, and Goodness, or, in the language of ORPHEUS and his disciples, Love : the second comprises the Indian and Egyptian doctrine of the Divine Essence and Archetypal Ideas ; for a distinct account of which the reader must be referred to a noble description in the sixth book of PLATO'S Republic ; and the fine explanation of that passage in an elegant discourse by the author of CYRUS, from whose learned work a hint has been borrowed for the conclusion of this piece. The third and fourth are taken from the Institutes of MENU, and the eighteenth puran of VYA'SA', entitled Srey Bhagawat, part of which has been translated into Persian, not without elegance, but rather too paraphrastically. From BREHME, or the Great Being, in the neuter gender, is formed BREHMA', in the masculine ; and the second word is appropriated to the creative power of the Divinity.

The spirit of God, called NA'RA'YENA, or moving on the water, has a multiplicity of other epithets in Sanscrit, the principal of which are introduced, expressly or by allusion, in the fifth stanza ; and two of them contain the names of the evil beings, who are feigned to have sprung from the ears of VISHNU ; for thus the divine spirit is entitled, when considered as the preserving power : the sixth ascribes the perception of secondary qualities by our senses to the immediate influence of MA'YA' ; and the seventh imputes to her operation the primary qualities of extension and solidity.

THE HYMN

SPIRIT of Spirits, who, through ev'ry part
Of space expanded and of endless time,
Beyond the stretch of lab'ring thought sublime,
Badst uproar into beauteous order start,
Before Heav'n was, Thou art ;

Ere spheres beneath us roll'd or spheres above,
Ere earth in firmamental ether hung,
Thou satst alone ; till, through thy mystic Love,
Things unexisting to existence sprung,

And grateful descant sung.

What first impell'd thee to exert thy might ?
Goodness unlimited. What glorious light
Thy pow'r directed ? Wisdom without bound.
What prov'd it first ? Oh ! guide my fancy right ;
Oh ! raise from combrous ground
My soul in rapture drown'd,

That fearless it may soar on wings of fire ;
For Thou, who only knowst, Thou only canst inspire.

Wrapt in eternal solitary shade,
Th' impenetrable gloom of light intense,
Impervious, inaccessible, immense,
Ere spirits were infus'd or forms display'd,

BREHM his own Mind survey'd,
As mortal eyes (thus finite we compare
With infinite) in smoothest mirrors gaze :
Swift, at his look, a shape supremely fair
Leap'd into being with a boundless blaze,
That fifty suns might daze.

Primeval MAYA was the Goddess nam'd,

Who to her sire, with Love divine inflam'd,
 A casket gave with rich Ideas fill'd,
 From which this gorgeous Universe he fram'd;
 For, when th' Almighty will'd
 Unnumber'd worlds to build,
 From Unity diversified he sprang,
 While gay Creation laugh'd, and procreant Nature rang.
 First an all-potent all-pervading sound
 Bade flow the waters—and the waters flow'd,
 Exulting in their measureless abode,
 Diffusive, multitudinous, profound,
 Above, beneath, around ;
 Then o'er the vast expanse primordial wind
 Breath'd gently, till a lucid bubble rose,
 Which grew in perfect shape an Egg refin'd :
 Created substance no such lustre shows,
 Earth no such beauty knows.
 Above the warring waves it danc'd elate,
 Till from its bursting shell with lovely state
 A form cerulean flutter'd o'er the deep,
 Brightest of beings, greatest of the great :
 Who, not as mortals steep,
 Their eyes in dewy sleep,
 But heav'nly-pensive on the Lotos lay,
 That blossom'd at his touch and shed a golden ray.
 Hail, primal blossom ! hail empyreal gem !
 KEMEL, or PEDMA, or whate'er high name
 Delight thee, say, what four-form'd Godhead came,
 With graceful stole and beamy diadem,
 Forth from thy verdant stem ?
 Full-gifted BREHMA ! Rapt in solemn thought
 He stood, and round his eyes fire-darting threw ;
 But, whilst his viewless origin he sought,
 One plain he saw of living waters blue,
 Their spring nor saw nor knew.

Then, in his parent stalk again retir'd,
 With restless pain for ages he inquir'd
 What were his pow'rs, by whom, and why conferr'd :
 With doubts perplex'd, with keen impatience fir'd
 He rose, and rising heard
 Th' unknown all-knowing Word,
 "BREHMA ! no more in vain research persist :
 My veil thou canst not move—Go ; bid all worlds exist."

Hail, self-existent, in celestial speech
 NARAYEN, from thy watry cradle, nam'd ;
 Or VENAMALY may I sing unblam'd,
 With flow'ry braids, that to thy sandals reach,
 Whose beauties, who can teach ?
 Or high PEITAMBER clad in yellow robes
 Than sunbeams brighter in meridian glow,
 That weave their heav'n-spun light o'er circling globes ?
 Unwearied, lotos-eyed, with dreadful bow,
 Dire Evil's constant foe !
 Great PEDMANABHA, o'er thy cherish'd world
 The pointed Cheera, by thy fingers whirl'd,
 Fierce KYTABU shall destroy and MEDHU grim
 To black despair and deep destruction hurl'd.
 Such views my senses dim,
 My eyes in darkness swim :
 What eye can bear thy blaze, what utt'rance tell
 Thy deeds with silver trump or many-wreathed shell ?
 Omniscient Spirit, whose all-ruling pow'r
 Bids from each sense bright emanations beam ;
 Glows in the rainbow, sparkles in the stream,
 Smiles in the bud, and glistens in the flow'r ;
 That crowns each vernal bow'r ;
 Sighs in the gale, and warbles in the throat
 Of ev'ry bird, that hails the bloomy spring,
 Or tells his love in many a liquid note,
 Whilst envious artists touch the rival string,

Till rocks and forests ring ;
 Breathes in rich fragrance from the sandal grove,
 Or where the precious musk-deer playful rove ;
 In dulcet juice from clust'ring fruit distills,
 And burns salubrious in the tasteful clove :
 Soft banks and verd'rous hills
 Thy present influence fills ;
 In air, in floods, in caverns, woods, and plains ;
 Thy will inspirits all, thy sov'reign MAYA reigns.
 Blue crystal vault, and elemental fires,
 That in th' ethereal fluid blaze and breathe ;
 Thou, tossing main, whose snaky branches wreathe
 This pensile orb with intertwisted gyres ;
 Mountains, whose radiant spires
 Presumptuous rear their summits to the skies,
 And blend their em'rald hue with sapphire light ;
 Smooth meads and lawns, that glow with varying dyes
 Of dew-bespangled leaves and bloffoms bright,
 Hence ! vanish from my sight :
 Delusive Pictures ! unsubstantial shows !
 My soul absorb'd One only Being knows,
 Of all perceptions One abundant source,
 Whence ev'ry object ev'ry moment flows :
 Suns hence derive their force,
 Hence planets learn their course ;
 But suns and fading worlds I view no more :
 God only I perceive ; God only I adore.

THE ARGUMENT.

THE Hindu Goddesses are uniformly represented as the subordinate powers of their respective lords : thus LACSHMY, the consort of VISHNU the Preserver, is the Goddess of abundance and prosperity; BHAVA'NY, the wife of MAHA'DE'v, is the genial power of fecundity; and SERESWATY, whose husband was the Creator BREHMA', possesses the powers of Imagination and Invention, which may justly be termed creative. She is, therefore, adored as the patroness of the fine arts, especially of Music and Rhetoric, as the inventress of the SANSKRIT Language, of the Dévanágrí Letters, and of the sciences, which writing perpetuates ; so that her attributes correspond with those of MINERVA MUSICA, in Greece and Italy, who invented the flute, and presided over literature. In this character she is addressed in the following ode, and particularly as the Goddess of Harmony; since the Indians usually paint her with a musical instrument in her hand : the seven notes, an artful combination of which constitutes Music and variously affects the passions, are feigned to be her earliest production ; and the greatest part of the Hymn exhibits a correct delineation of the RA'GMA'LA', or Necklace of Musical Modes, which may be considered as the most pleasing invention of the ancient Hindus, and the most beautiful union of Painting with poetical Mythology and the genuine theory of Music.

The different position of the two semitones in the scale of seven notes gives birth to seven primary modes ; and, as the whole series consists of twelve semitones, every one of which may be made a modal note or tonic, there are in nature, (though not universally in practice) seventy-seven other modes, which may be called derivative : all the eighty-four are distributed by the PERSIANS, under the notion of locality, into three classes consisting of twelve rooms, twenty-four angles, and forty-eight recesses ; but the HINDU arrangement is elegantly formed on the variations of the Indian year, and the association of ideas ; a powerful auxiliary to the ordinary effect of modulation. The Modes, in this system, are deified ; and, as there are six seasons in India, namely, two Springs, Summer, Autumn, and two Winters, an original RA'G, or God of the Mode, is conceived to preside over a particular season ; each principal mode is attended by five RA'GNYs, or Nymphs of Harmony ; each has eight Sons, or Genii of the same divine Art ; and each RA'G, with his family, is appropriated to a distinct season, in which alone his melody can be sung or played at prescribed hours of the day and night : the mode of DEIPEC, or CUPID the Inflamer, is supposed to be lost ; and a tradition is current in Hindustan, that a musician, who attempted to restore it, was consumed by fire from heaven. The natural distribution of modes would have been seven, thirty-three, and forty-four, according to the number of the minor and major secondary tones ; but this order was varied for the sake of the charming fiction above-mentioned. NA'RED, who is described in the third stanza, was one of the first created beings, corresponding with the MERCURY of the Italians, inventor of the VENE, a fretted instrument supported by two large gourds, and confessedly the finest used in Asia.

A full discussion of so copious a subject would require a separate dissertation ; but here it will be sufficient to say, that almost every allusion and every epithet in the Poem, as well as the names, are selected from approved treatises, either originally Persian or translated from the Sanscrit, which contain as lively a display of genius, as human imagination ever exhibited.

The last couplet alludes to the celebrated place of pilgrimage, at the confluence of the Gangâ and Yamnâ, which the Sereswaty, another sacred river, is supposed to join under ground.

THE HYMN

SWEET grace of BREHMA's bed !
Thou, when thy glorious lord
Bade airy nothing breathe and bless his pow'r,
Satst with illumin'd head,
And, in sublime accord,
Sev'n sprightly notes, to hail th' auspicious hour,
Ledst from their secret bow'r :
They drank the air ; they came
With many a sparkling glance,
And knit the mazy dance,
Like yon bright orbs, that gird the solar flame,
Now parted, now combin'd,
Clear as thy speech and various as thy mind.
Young Passions at the sound
In shadowy forms arose,
O'er hearts, yet uncreated, sure to reign ;
Joy, that o'erleaps all bound,
Grief, that in silence grows,
Hope, that with honey blends the cup of pain,
Pale Fear, and stern Disdain,
Grim Wrath's avenging band,
Love, nurs'd in dimple smooth,
That ev'ry pang can soothe ;
But, when soft Pity her meek trembling hand
Stretch'd, like a new-born girl,
Each sigh was music, and each tear a pearl.
Thee her great parent owns
All-ruling Eloquence,
That, like full GANGA, pours her stream divine
Alarming states and thrones :

To fix the flying sense
 Of words, thy daughters, by the varied line
 (Stupendous art !) was Thine ;
 Thine, with pointed reed
 To give primeval Truth
 Th' unfading bloom of youth,
 And paint on deathless leaves high Virtue's meed :
 Fair Science, heav'n-born child,
 And playful Fancy on thy bosom smil'd.

Who bids the fretted Vene
 Start from his deep repose,
 And wakes to melody the quiv'ring frame ?
 What youth with goldlike mien
 O'er his bright shoulder throws
 The verdant gourd, that swells with struggling flame ?
 NĀ'ĀRĒD, immortal name !
 He, like his potent Sire,
 Creative spreads around
 The mighty world of sound,
 And calls from speaking wood ethereal fire ;
 While to th' accordant strings
 Of boundless heav'ns and heav'nly deeds he sings.

But look ! the jocund hours
 A lovelier scene display,
 Young HINDOL sportive in his golden swing
 High-canopied with flow'rs ;
 While Rāgny's ever gay
 Toss the light cordage, and in cadence sing
 The sweet return of Spring :
 Here dark Virāwer stands ;
 There Rāmcary divine
 And fawn-eyed Lelit shine ;
 But stern Daysāsha leads her warring bands,
 And slow in ebon clouds
Petmenjary her fading beauty shrouds.

Ah ! where has DEIPEC⁻ veil'd
 His flame-encircled head ?
 Where flow his lays too sweet for mortal ears ?
 O loss how long bewail'd !
 Is yellow Cámód fled ?
 And blythe Cárnàty vaunting o'er her peers ?
 Where stream Cayda'r's tears
 Intent on scenes above,
 A beauteous anchorite ?
 No more shall Daysa bright
 With gentle numbers call her tardy love ?
 Has Netta, martial maid,
 Lock'd in sad slumbers her sky-temper'd blade ?

Once, when the vernal noon
 Blaz'd with resistless glare,
 The Sun's eye sparkled, and a God was born :
 He smil'd ; but vanish'd soon——
 Then groan'd the northern air ;
 The clouds, in thunder mutt'ring sullen scorn,
 Delug'd the thirsty corn.
 But, earth-born artist, hold !
 If e'er thy soaring lyre
 To Deipec's notes aspire,
 Thy strings, thy bow'r, thy breast with rapture bold,
 Red lightning shall consume ;
 Nor can thy sweetest song avert the doom.

See sky-form'd MAYGH descend
 In fertilising rain,
 Whilst in his hand a falchion gleams unsheath'd !
 Soft nymphs his car attend,
 And raise the golden grain,
 Their tresses dank with dusky spikenard wreath'd :
 (A sweeter gale ne'er breath'd)
Tenca with laughing eyes,
 And Gujry's bloomy cheek,

Mela'r with dimple sleek ,
 On whose fair front two musky crescents rise :
 While Daysca'r his rich neck
 And mild Bhopa'ly with fresh jasmin deck.

Is that the King of Dread
 With ashy musing face,
 From whose moon-silver'd locks fam'd GANGA springs ?
 'Tis BHAIKARAN, whose gay bed
 Five blushing damsels grace,
 And rouse old Autumn with immortal strings,
 Till ev'ry forest rings ;
 Benga'ly lotos-crown'd,
 Vaira'ty like the morn,
 Sindvy with looks of scorn,
 And Bhairavy, her brow with Champa's bound ;
 But Medhuma'dha's eyes
 Speak love, and from her breast pomegranates rise.

Sing loud, ye lucid spheres ;
 Ye gales, more briskly play,
 And wake with harmony the drooping meads :
 The cooler season cheers
 Each bird, that panting lay,
 And SIKH bland his dancing bevy leads
 Hymning celestial deeds :
 Marva' with robes like fire,
 Vasant whose hair perfumes
 With musk its rich-eyed plumes,
A'sa'very, whom list'ning asps admire,
 Dhena'sry, flow'r of glades,
 And Ma'lsry, whom the branching Amra shades.

MALKAUS apart reclines
 Bedeck'd with heav'n-strung pearls,
 Blue-mantled, wanton, drunk with youthful pride ;
 Nor with vain love repines,
 While softly-smiling girls

Melt on his cheek or frolic by his side,
 And wintry winds deride ;
Shambha'uty leads along
Cocabh with kerchief rent,
 And Gaûry wine-besprent,
 Warm Guncary, and Toda sweet in song,
 Whom antelopes surround
 With smooth tall necks, and quaff the streaming sound.
 Nor deem these nuptial joys
 With lovely fruit unblest :
 No ; from each God an equal race proceeds,
 From each eight blooming boys ;
 Who, their high birth confess'd,
 With infant lips gave breath to living reeds
 In valleys, groves, and meads :
 Mark how they bound and glance !
 Some climb the vocal trees,
 Some catch the sighing breeze,
 Some, like new stars, with twinkling sandals dance ;
 Some the young Shamma snare,
 Some warble wild, and some the burden bear.
 These are thy wond'rous arts ;
 Queen of the flowing speech,
 Thence SERESWATY nam'd and VA'NY bright !
 Oh, joy of mortal hearts,
 Thy mystic wisdom teach ;
 Expand thy leaves, and, with ethereal light,
 Spangle the veil of night.
 If LEPIT please thee more,
 Or BRA'HMY, awful name,
 Dread BRA'HMY's aid we claim,
 And thirst, VA'CDE'VY, for thy balmy lore
 Drawn from that rubied cave,
 Where meek-ey'd pilgrims hail the triple wave.

THE ARGUMENT.

THIS poem would be rather obscure without geographical notes ; but a short introductory explanation will supply the place of them, and give less interruption to the reader.

We are obliged to a late illustrious Chinese monarch named CAN-HI', who directed an accurate survey to be made of Pótyid or (as it is called by the Arabs) Tebbut, for our knowledge, that a chain of mountains nearly parallel with Imaus, and called Cantésè by the Tartars, forms a line of separation between the sources of two vast rivers ; which, as we have abundant reason to believe, run at first in opposite directions, and, having finished a winding circuit of two thousand miles, meet a little below Dha'cà, so as to inclose the richest and most beautiful peninsula on earth, in which the BRITISH nation, after a prosperous course of brilliant actions in peace and war, have now the principal sway. These rivers are deified in INDIA ; that, which rises on the Western edge of the mountain, being considered as the daughter of MAHA'DE'VA or SIVA, and the other as the son of BRAHMA' : their loves, wanderings, and nuptials are the chief subject of the following Ode, which is feigned to have been the work of a BRA'HMEN, in an early age of HINDU antiquity, who, by a prophetic spirit, discerns the toleration and equity of the BRITISH government, and concludes with a prayer for its peaceful duration under good laws well administered.

After a general description of the Ganges, an account is given of her fabulous birth, like that of Pallas, from the forehead of Siva, the Jupiter Tonans and Genitor of the Latins; and the creation of her lover by an act of Brahmā's will is the subject of another stanza, in which his course is delineated through the country of Pōtyid, by the name of Sanpō, or Supreme Bliss, where he passes near the fortress of Rimbū, the island of Palté or Yambrō (known to be the seat of a high priestess almost equally venerated with the Goddess Bhawa'ni) and Trashilhumbo (as a Pōtya or Tebbutian would pronounce it), or the sacred mansion of the Lama next in dignity to that of Pōtala, who resides in a city, to the south of the Sanpō, which the Italian travellers write Sgigatzhè, but which, according to the letters, ought rather to be written in a manner, that would appear still more barbarous in our orthography. The Brahmaputra is not mentioned again till the twelfth stanza, where his progress is traced, by very probable conjecture, through Rangama'ti, the ancient Rangamriticā or Rangamar, celebrated for the finest spikenard, and Srihāt or Siret, the Serrata of Eliau, whence the fragrant essence extracted from the Malobathrum, called Sa'dah by the Persians, and Te'japa'tra by the Indians, was carried by the Persian gulf to Syria, and from that coast into Greece and Italy. It is not, however, positively certain, that the Brahmaputra rises as it is here described: two great geographers are decidedly of opposite opinions on this very point; nor is it impossible that the Indian river may be one arm of the Sanpō and the Naucyan, another; diverging from the mountains of Asha'm, after they have been enriched by many rivers from the rocks of China.

The fourth and fifth stanzas represent the Goddess obstructed in her passage to the west by the hills of Emodi, so called from a Sanscrit word signifying snow, from which also are derived both Imaus and Hima'laya or Himola. The sixth describes her, after her entrance into Hindūstan through the straits of Cūpala, flowing near Sambal, the Sambalaca of Ptolemy, famed for a beautiful plant of the like name, and thence to the once opulent city and royal place of residence, Ca'nyacurja, erroneously named Calinipaxa by the Greeks, and Canauj, not very accurately, by the modern Asiatics: here she is joined by the Calinadi, and pursues her course to Praya'ga, whence the people of Baha'r were named Prasi, and where the Yamund, having received the Sereswati below Indarprest'ha or Dehli, and watered the poetical ground of Mat'hura' and Agar, mingles her noble stream with the Gangà close to the modern fort of Ilaha'bad. This place is considered as the confluence of three sacred rivers, and known by the name of Trivéni, or the three plaited locks; from which a number of pilgrims, who there begin the ceremonies to be completed at Gayà, are continually bringing vases of water, which they preserve with superstitious veneration, and are greeted by all the Hindus, who meet them on their return.

Six of the principal rivers, which bring their tribute to the Ganges, are next enumerated, and are succinctly described from real properties: thus the Gandac, which the Greeks knew by a similar name, abounds, according to Giorgi, with crocodiles of enormous magnitude; and the Mahanadi runs by the plain of Gaura, once a populous district with a magnificent capital, from which the Bengalese were probably called Gangaridæ, but now the seat of desolation, and the haunt of wild beasts. From Praya'ga she hastens to Cu'si, or as the Muslimans name it, Bena'res; and here occasion is taken to condemn the cruel and intolerant spirit of the crafty tyrant AURANGZÏB, whom the Hindus of Cashmir call Auranga'sir, or the Demon, not the Ornament, of the Throne. She next bathes the skirts of Pa'taliputra, changed into Patna, which, both in situation and name, agrees better on the whole with the ancient Palibothra, than either Praya'ga, or Ca'nyacurja: if Megasthenes and the ambassadors of Seleucus visited the last-named city, and called it Palibothra, they were palpably mistaken. After this are introduced the beautiful hill of Muctigiri, or Mengir, and the wonderful pool of Sita', which takes its name from the wife of Ra'ma, whose conquest of Sinhaldwip, or Silàn, and victory over the giant Ra'wan, are celebrated by the immortal Va'lmici, and by other epic poets of India.

The pleasant hills of Cu'ligra'm and Ganga'-presa'd are then introduced, and give occasion to deplore and extol the late excellent AUGUSTUS CLEVELAND, Esq. who nearly completed by lenity the glorious work, which severity could not have accomplished, of civilizing a ferocious race of Indians, whose mountains were formerly, perhaps, a rocky island, or washed at least by that sea, from which the fertile champaign of Bengal has been gained in a course of ages. The western arm of the Ganges is called Bha'girathi, from a poetical fable of a demigod or holy man, named Bha'girat'ha, whose devotion had obtained from Siva the privilege of leading after him a great part of the heavenly water, and who drew it accordingly in two branches; which embrace the fine island, now denominated from Ka'simba'zâr, and famed for the defeat of the monster Sira'jud-daulah, and, having met near the venerable Hindu seminary of Nawadwip or Nediya', flow in a copious stream by the several European settlements, and reach the Bay at an island which assumes the name of Sa'gar, either from the Sea or from an ancient Raja of distinguished piety. The Sundarabans or Beautiful Woods, an appellation to which they are justly entitled, are incidentally mentioned, as lying between the Bhagriat'hi and the Great River, or Eastern arm, which, by its junction with the Brahma'putra, forms many considerable islands; one of which, as well as a town near the conflux, derives its name from Lacshmi, the Goddess of Abundance.

It will soon be perceived, that the form of the stanza, which is partly borrowed from GRAY, and to which he was probably partial, as he uses it six times in nine, is enlarged in the following Hymn by a line of fourteen syllables, expressing the long and solemn march of the great Asiatic rivers.

THE HYMN.

HOW sweetly GANGA's smiles, and glides
Luxuriant o'er her broad autumnal bed !
Her waves perpetual verdure spread,
Whilst health and plenty deck her golden sides :
As when an eagle, child of light,
On Cambala's unmeasur'd height,
By Pótala, the pontiff's throne rever'd,
O'er her eyry proudly rear'd
Sits brooding, and her plumage vast expands,
Thus GANGA' o'er her cherish'd lands,
To Brahmà's grateful race endear'd,
Throws wide her fost'ring arms, and on her banks divine
Sees temples, groves, and glitt'ring tow'rs, that in her crystal shine.]

Above the stretch of mortal ken,
On bless'd Caila'sa's top, where ev'ry stem
Glow'd with a vegetable gem,
MAHE'SA stood, the dread and joy of men ;
While Pa'rvatì, to gain a boon,
Fix'd on his locks a beamy moon,
And hid his frontal eye, in jocund play,
With reluctant sweet delay :
All nature straight was lock'd in dim eclipse
Till Brahmans pure, with hallow'd lips
And warbled pray'rs restor'd the day ;
When GANGA' from his brow by heav'nly fingers press'd Sprang radiant, and descending grac'd the caverns of the west.]

The sun's car blaz'd, and laugh'd the morn ;
 What time near proud Cantésa's eastern bow'rs,
 (While Dévata's rain'd living flow'rs)
 A river-god, so Brahmā will'd, was born,
 And roll'd mature his vivid stream
 Impetuous with celestial gleam :
 The charms of GANGA', through all worlds proclaim'd,
 Soon his youthful breast inflam'd,
 But destiny the bridal hour delay'd ;
 Then, distant from the west'ring maid,
 He flow'd, now blissful Sanpò nam'd,
 By Paltè crown'd with hills, bold Rimbu's tow'ring state,
 And where sage Trashilhumbo hails her Lama's form reneate.

But she, whose mind, at Siva's nod,
 The picture of that sov'reign youth had seen,
 With graceful port and warlike mien,
 In arms and vesture like his parent God,
 Smit with the bright idea rush'd,
 And from her sacred mansion gush'd,
 Yet ah ! with erring step—The western hills
 Pride, not pious ardour, fills :
 In fierce confed'racy the giant bands
 Advance with venom-darting hands,
 Fed by their own malignant rills ;
 Nor could her placid grace their savage fury quell :
 The madding rifts and should'ring crags her foamy flood repell]

“ Confusion wild and anxious wo
 Haunt your waste brow, she said, unholy rocks,
 Far from these nectar-dropping locks !
 But thou, lov'd Father, teach my waves to flow.”
 Loud thunder her high birth confess'd ;
 Then from th' inhospitable west
 She turn'd, and, gliding o'er a lovelier plain,
 Cheer'd the pearly East again :
 Through groves of nard she roll'd, o'er spicy reeds,

Through golden vales and em'rald meads ;
 Till, pleas'd with INDRA's fair domain,
 She won through yielding marl her heav'n-directed way :
 With lengthen'd notes her eddies curl'd, and pour'd
a blaze of day.]

Smoothly by Sambal's flaunting bow'rs,
 Smoothly she flows, where Calinadí brings
 To Canyacuvja, seat of kings,
 On prostrate waves her tributary flow'rs ;
 Whilst Yamund, whose waters clear
 Fam'd Indraprestha's vallies cheer,
 With Sereswatí knit in mystic chain,
 Gurgles o'er the vocal plain
 Of Mathurá, by sweet Brinda'van's grove,
 Where Gópa's love-lorn daughters rove,
 And hurls her azure stream amain,
 Till blest Praya'ga's point beholds three mingling tides,
 Where pilgrims on the far-sought bank drink nectar,
as it glides.]

From Himola's perennial snow,
 And southern Palamau's less daring steep,
 Sonorous rivers, bright though deep,
 O'er thirsty deserts youth and freshness throw.
 'A goddess comes,' cried Gumti chaste,
 And roll'd her flood with zealous haste :
 Her follow'd Sona with pellucid wave
 Dancing from her diamond cave,
 Broad Gogra, rushing swift from northern hills,
 Red Gandac, drawn by crocodiles,
 (Herds, drink not there, nor, herdsmen, lave !)
Cosa, whose bounteous hand Népa'lian odour flings,
 And Mahanadi laughing wild at cities, thrones, and kings.

Thy temples, CA'sí', next she sought,
 And verd'rous plains by tepid breezes fann'd,
 Where health extends her pinions bland,
 Thy groves, were pious Va'lmic sat and thought,

Where Vyāsa pour'd the strain sublime,
 That laughs at all-consuming time,
 And Brāhmans rapt the lofty Vēda sing.
 Cease, oh ! cease—a ruffian king,
 The demon of his empire, not the grace,
 His ruthless bandits bids deface
 The shrines, whence gifts ethereal spring :
 So shall his frantic sons with discord rend his throne,
 And his fair-smiling realms be sway'd by nations yet unknown.]

Less hallow'd scenes her course prolong ;
 But Cāma, restless pow'r, forbids delay :
 To love all virtues homage pay,
 E'en stern religion yields. How full, how strong
 Her trembling panting surges run,
 Where Pa'tali's immortal son
 To domes and turrets gives his awful name
 Fragrant in the gales of fame !
 Nor stop, were RA'MA, bright from dire alarms,
 Sinks in chaste Si'ta's constant arms,
 While bards his wars and truth proclaim :
 There from a fiery cave the bubbling crystal flows,
 And Muctigir, delightful hill, with mirth and beauty glows.

Oh ! rising bow'rs, great Ca'u's boast,
 And thou, from Gangā nam'd, enchanting mount,
 What voice your wailings can recount
 Borne by shrill echoes o'er each howling coast,
 When He, who bade your forests bloom,
 Shall seal his eyes in iron gloom ?
 Exalted youth ! The godless mountaineer,
 Roaming round his thickets drear,
 Whom rigour fir'd, nor legions could appall,
 I see before thy mildness fall,
 Thy wisdom love, thy justice fear :
 A race, whom rapine nurs'd, whom gory murder stains,
 Thy fair example wins to peace, to gentle virtue trains.

On thy jasper bosom float ;
Nor frown, dread Goddess, on a peerless race
With lib'ral heart and martial grace,
Wasted from colder isles remote :
As they preserve our laws, and bid our terror cease,
So be their darling laws preserv'd in wealth, in joy,
in peace !]

THE

OF

P I N D A R .

I. 1.

CALM breathing-place of ALPHEUS dread,
ORTYGIA, graceful branch of SYRACUSE renown'd,
Young DIANA's rosy bed,
Sister of DELOS, thee, with sweet, yet lofty, sound
Bursting numbers call, to raise
Of tempest-footed steeds the trophies glorious
(Thus ETNEAN Jove we praise) ;
While CHROMIUS' car invites, and NEMEA's plain,
For noble acts victorious
To weave th' encomiastic strain.

I. 2.

From prosp'ring Gods the song begins ;
Next hails that godlike man and virtue's holy meeds :
He the flow'r of greatness wins,
Whom smiling fortune crowns ; and vast heroic deeds
Ev'ry muse delights to sing.
Now wake to that fair isle the splendid story,
Which the great OLYMPIAN king,
JOVE, gave to PROSERPINE, and wav'd his locks
Vowing, that, supreme in glory,
Fam'd for sweet fruits and nymph-lov'd rocks,

I. 3.

SICILIA's full nutritious breast
With tow'r'd and wealthy cities he would crown.

Her the son of SATURN bless'd
 With suitors brazen-arm'd for war's renown
 By lance and fiery steed ; yet oft thy leaves,
 OLYMPIC olive, bind their hair
 In wreathy gold. Great subjects I prepare ;
 But none th' immortal verse deceives.

II. 1.

Oft in the portals was I plac'd
 Of that guest-loving man, and pour'd the dulcet strain,
 Where becoming dainties grac'd
 His hospitable board ; for ne'er with efforts vain
 Strangers to his mansion came :
 And thus the virtuous, when detraction rages,
 Quench with lib'ral streams her flame.
 Let each in virtue's path right onward press,
 As each his art engages,
 And, urg'd by genius, win success.

II. 2.

Laborious action Strength applies,
 And wary conduct, Sense : the future to foresee
 Nature gives to few, the wise.
 AGESIDAMUS' son, she frankly gave to thee
 Pow'ful might and wisdom deep.
 I seek not in dark cells the hoarded treasure
Grov'ling with low care to keep,
 But, as wealth flows, to spread it ; and to hear
 Loud fame, with ample measure
 Cheering my friends, since hope and fear

II. 3.

Assail disastrous men. The praise
 Of HERCULES with rapture I embrace :
 On the heights, which virtues raise,
 The rapid legend old his name shall place ;
 For, when he brook'd no more the cheerless gloom,
And burst into the blaze of day,

THE FIRST NEMEAN ODE.

The child of Jove with his twin-brother lay,
Refulgent from the sacred womb.

III 1.

Not unobserv'd the godlike boy
By JUNO golden-thron'd the saffron cradle press'd ;
Straight heav'n's queen with furious joy
Bade hideous dragons fleet th' unguarded floor infest :
They, the portals op'ning wide,
Roll'd through the chamber's broad recess tremendous,
And in jaws fire-darting tried
The slumb'ring babe to close. He, starting light,
Rear'd his bold head stupendous,
And first in battle prov'd his might.

III. 2.

With both resistless hands he clasp'd
Both struggling horrid pests, and cloth'd their necks with death ;]
They expiring, as he grasp'd,
Pour'd from their throats compress'd the foul envenom'd breath.]

Horror seiz'd the female train,
Who near ALCMENA's genial couch attended :
She, from agonizing pain
Yet weak, unsandal'd and unmantled rush'd,
And her love'd charge defended,
Whilst he the fiery monsters crush'd.

III. 3.

Swift the CADMEAN leaders ran
In brazen mail precipitately bold :
First AMPHITRYON, dauntless man,
Bar'd his rais'd falchion from its sheathing gold,
While griding anguish pierc'd his flutt'ring breast ;
For private woes most keenly bite
Self-loving man ; but soon the heart is light,
With sorrow, not its own, oppress'd.

AN EXTRACT

FROM THE

BHUSHANDA' RA'MA'YAN

THE beautiful and lofty mountain, called NEIL, or azure, has a pointed summit of pure gold : the holy trees, Peipel, Ber, and Pacr, flourish on its brow ; and its top is crowned with a pool of water shining like diamonds of exquisite brilliancy : clear, fresh, and sweet streams, displaying a rich variety of colours, flow from all sides of it ; and thousands of birds warble rapturous lays among the sacred branches. Here the Crow BHU'SHANDA', who had been adorned with many virtues, and disgraced by many vices, who had lived in every part of the universe, and knew all events from the beginning of time, had fixed his abode. Under the Peipel, he meditated on the divinity : under the Pacr he poured forth invocations : under the shade of the Ber he chanted the story of VISHN ; to hear which the feathered inhabitants of woods and of waters assembled around him ; and even MAHADAYO, in the form of the large white-plumed MARA'L, perched on a bough, was delighted with listening to the adventures of the all-good and all-powerful RA'M.

To this mountain the sage Eagle GERHUR, essence of all amiable qualities who stands near Vishn himself, and is ridden by that stupendous God, hastily took his flight, and was relieved, on beholding it from the cares, which before oppressed him : he bathed his pinions in the pool, and refreshed his beak with a draught of the hallowed water. Just as Bhushanda' was opening his divine history, the king of air appeared in his presence : the winged assembly paid him respectful homage, saluted him with solemn expressions of reverence, and then, addressing him with sweet words of affection, placed him on a seat becoming his high dignity.

“Monarch of birds, began the Crow, the sight of thee transports me with joy, signify to me thy commands ; and inform me what inducement has brought thee to the mansion of thy servant.”

“Brother, answered Gerûr, the purpose of my visit was in part answered by my first view of thy charming retreat ; and the doubts, which thou alone couldst have removed from this breast, are now almost wholly dispersed : but listen to my recital.

“When the son of RA'WAN, the giant, with a thousand arms, had bound Ra'm with a snake discharged from his bow, NARED commissioned me to disentangle the celestial warrior ; and the commisson was executed with faithful dispatch : but pride arose in my heart ; and considering that even mortals are exempt through devotion, from the shackles of terror, I concluded that, if Ra'm had in truth been a deity of boundless power, he could never have been made captive by the fold of a reptile. All night was I disturbed by these embarrassing reflexions ; and my arrogance, as the deliverer of a god, attained such a height, that my reason had nearly forsaken me : I retained, however, sense enough to seek a solution of my doubts ; and, hastening to my wise employer Na'ed, laid open to him the secret of my bosom.

Thou art fallen, said the son of BREHMA', with a compassionate aspect, into the snares of passion, from which the most virtuous, when they fail to exert their understandings, cannot be secure ; that appearance, by which thou hast been caught, was only the MA'YA', or deception of Vishn, which has often deluded even me. To give thee perfect relief, exceeds my power : go to the palace of my father, and implicitly follow his directions.

“With all imaginable swiftness I flew to the heaven of Brehma', giving praises to my lord and rider Vishn, and explained to the benign God, the grounds of my perplexity.

The Creator stood awhile in silence, reflecting on the glories of Ra'm, and the force of his illusions ; then, leaving his meditation, It is no wonder, said he, that thou hast been deceived by a power, from which I, as the very time of the creation, was not exempt. RA'M has tried thee by a delusive appearance ; and, when thou hadst untwisted the living chain, which entangled him, thou satst all night elated with pride, and contemplating thy own prowess. Hasten, therefore, to the palace of MAHADAYO, than whom no deity better knows the supremacy of RA'M : he will dissipate thy sorrows.

His words were instantly followed by my flight towards Cai'la's, but I met the destroying power near the mansion of COBAYR, the wealthy genius of the north. Having listened benignantly to my narrative, he thus instructed me : 'Thou art under the influence of a strong passion, from which no discourse of mine can so soon relieve thee, as the conversation of religious persons, and serious attention to the history of Vishn, related by pious Munys in sweet accents. Without conversing with the religious, the noble deeds of the preserving power cannot be known ; without that knowledge, the passions cannot be conquered ; without that conquest, true devotion cannot be acquired ; and without that acquisition, whatever sacrifices may be performed, or ceremonies observed, God will never be seen by man. Fly, O Gerur, to the regions of the west, and piously attend, with birds of inferior wing, to the achievements of Ra'm ; as they will be related by the wise habitant of the azure mountain, the virtuous Bhūsanda' : the relation will subdue thy passion, and wholly dispel thy sorrows. Expect not a remedy from me ; since thou hast entertained proud thoughts concerning Ra m, by whom I have been highly favoured : besides, one bird will convey instruction more effectually to another bird in their common dialect.'

Not a moment was lost by me in seeking thy delightful abode ; and the sight of it almost entirely destroyed my pride with its bitter, but certain, fruit, affliction. Complete my recovery, beloved brother, by reciting the sacred story of Ra'm."

The devout Bhūsanda' complied immediately with his request; and having pronounced an eulogium on the incarnate God, began with an account of his Avatar, or Descent; and then related the adventures of his childhood, the actions of his youth, and the circumstances of his marriage with SEI'TA'. He next informed the attentive eagle, how the machinations of B'HA'RT, the half-brother of Ra'm, and of CAYCAI', his step-mother, induced king JESRET, his father, to send him into the woods, while the whole nation in agony mourned his loss; how LECH'HMEN, his affectionate brother, insisted on accompanying him in exile; how they meditated on providence in a great forest, and afterwards passed the Ganga to preach lessons of devotion in populous towns: he proceeded to the death of the old Ra'ja', the penitence of B'ha'rt, and his journey in pursuit of Ra'm, who, after long and earnest solicitation, returned to Ayodhya, where he lived with the splendour of a divinity: he told, how Ra'm again retired among the tickets, and there gave instructions to hermits and reverend Munys; how Lech'hmen was provoked to disfigure a giantess, and slay two giants, the sister and kinsmen of Ra'wan; how that imperious demon violently seized the incomparable Seita', and bore her captive to the place of his tyrannous empire, the isle of LANCA'; how Ra'm, afflicted to excess, passed the whole rainy season upon a mountain, having contracted a friendship with the race of Apes, and appointed their chief, HENU'MAN, son of the wind, to the command of his new-raised army; how they discovered the bower of *Asoca's, in which Seita was confined; how a vast bridge was erected by them over the sea, from which Henu'man leaped into the island, consoled the faithful Seita, and set fire to the gardens of Ra'wan; who, in a desperate engagement, was routed and slain by Ra'm; lastly, how the divine conqueror revisited his country, restored to joy its disconsolate inhabitants, conferred high honours on the learned Bra'hmens, treated his preceptor BA'SISHT with such reverence, that he drank the water in which he had washed the feet of the Muny, and instructed the humble B'ha rt in celestial knowledge ; how the Ra'nys and highborn damsels, having bathed the lovely Sei'ta', decorated her with inestimable jewels, and offered her holy curds in golden basons, crowned with branches of Tulsy ; how the princes of the apes, and other warlike beasts, assumed the most beautiful human forms ; how men of all ranks, who flocked to the palace, forgetting their homes, as the pious forget their enemies, concurred in singing the praises of their king, while the gods rained flowers from heaven on the delighted assembly.

"The festivals and entertainments," added the crow, on his receiving the sacred mark of vermilion, and ascending the throne with Se'it, "thou sawst, O monarch of the air, and wast enraptured with devout joy ; for Brahma, Mahádayo, Náred, and other deities, attended them ; nor wouldst thou be absent on so signal an occasion. During this reign, no terrors alarmed, or sorrows rent, the bosoms of his votaries ; all was love, piety, concord ; the name of vice was unknown or unheard ; none were then infirm, none ignorant, none distressed ; sweet and salutary liquors flowed from every tree ; perpetual blossoms laughed on the stalks, and perpetual fruit hung glittering from the branches ; a cool placid gale blew without ceasing ; the birds charmed each forest with æreal melody ; and animals, the most opposite in their kinds, lived together, like the venerable cow with her own calf, in perfect amity, and even tenderness. Such were the blessings derived by mankind from Rám, whose presence rendered the silver age equal in virtue and happiness to that of gold."

As soon as Busunda had concluded his narration : "O adorable Ra'm," exclaimed the eagle, "I revere thee for thy power, and love thee for thy goodness ! Hadst thou not been pleased to raise doubts in my mind, and, by thy divine Ma'ya', to beguile me into the sin of pride, how should I have been directed to this noble mountain ? How should I have heard the recital of thy glorious actions ? How should the ardent love of thee have been kindled in my bosom ?"

“Me too,” said the crow, “has Ra'm exalted, by procuring me the honour of being thus consulted by the sovereign of birds. To thee his affection has been signally manifested ; and thou mayest now cease to wonder, that the most eminent among the deities, and the most virtuous Rishys, have fallen under the dominion of the passions. What being exists, but God, who was never seduced by the love of wealth ; whom nothing has provoked to wrath, or stimulated to vengeance ; whom the pleasures of youth have not allured, nor female beauty smitten with the shafts of large and languishing eyes ? who can boast of a constant exemption from groundless terrors and unavailing grief ? Whose fame has never been blemished by pride ? Whom has ambition never captivated with false views of greatness ? All these temptations and blandishments are the daughters of Ma'ya', with whose fascinations, diffused over the world, Vishn deludes all creatures for their ultimate advantage. He is the being of beings, one substance in three forms ; without mode, without quality, without passion ; immense, incomprehensible, infinite, indivisible, immutable, incorporeal, irresistible : His operations no mind can conceive ; and his will moves all the inhabitants of the universe, as puppets are moved by strings. The pious, whom he loves, as a mother loves her only infant, rejoice in his government, and exult in his glory ; while the irreligious, who are proud, ignorant, captious, and madly impute to Ra'm the consequences of their own stupidity, vainly afflict themselves, and view all objects in false colours ; as they, whose eyes are inflamed, suppose the moon also to be red : their folly would make them believe, that the sun rises in the west, and their fears agitate them, like small barques tossed by the waves. Were the firmament illumined by sixteen moons, yet, if no sun rose, the stars would not disappear : thus, without religion and humility, vice and error cannot be dispersed. As an illustration of these truths, hear, O Gerúr, the story of my life ; and mark the sad effects of my sin.

“When Ra'm was born in Audh, I repaired eagerly to his birthplace, attended him five years with assiduity, contemplating his beautiful features, and receiving happiness from the sparkles of his eye. He used to laugh when I approached him, and when I departed, to weep : sometimes he tried to seize me by the feet, and shed tears if I flew out of his reach. Can this, I thought, can this be the ruler of the universe? Thus was I entangled by his illusion, and my mind was perplexed with doubts ; I became sad and pensive ; but the divine infant laughed at my distress, One day, he ran suddenly to catch me ; but seeing his body black and his feet ruddy, I took my flight aloft with inexpressible agitation : he stretched out his arm, and how high soever I flew, the same arm pursued me at an equal distance. As soon as I reached the heaven of Brahma, I looked back, and still saw behind me the arm of Vishn ; amazed and stupefied, I closed my eyes in a trance and found myself, when I opened them, near the city of Ayodhya.

“ On my return to the palace Jesret, I renewed my homage to Ra'm ; but he made a sport of my confusion, which was so great, that, as he laughed, I flew into his mouth : there I saw myriads of heavens infinitely splendid ; myriads of Brahma's and Mohadayo's, myriads of suns, moons, and stars, gods and goddesses, Ra'ja's and Ra'ny's, and gazed beneath me on this vast earth, girt with multitudinous seas, veined with rivers, clothed with forests, and peopled with numberless animals. An hundred complete years I dwelled in each heaven ; and traversing them all, was dazzled with their endless and unutterable glories ; but, whithersoever I shaped my course, I beheld one only, RA'M, the same lovely infant, whose idea was impressed indelibly on my mind.

Having spent a wonderful period of revolving ages in this ethereal jaunt, I returned to my own habitation ; where I heard, that Ra'm was become incarnate, and, hastening to the place of his birth, I enjoyed the rapture of beholding him : yet was my heart still agitated by a storm of passions, and a thousand cares arose in my breast. Ra'm, knowing what anxiety his deceptions had produced, again laughed, and I flew out of his mouth into open air. On finding that I had rambled over so many worlds, and seen so many wonders in so few minutes, and on considering the power of the divine spirit, I fell breathless to the ground : at length : ‘ Have pity, said I, have pity on me ; and cease, O thou, who rewardest the devout ! cease to delude and grieve thy humiliated votary.’ The deity then perceiving my unfeigned anguish, suspended the influence of his Maia, placed his hands with gentleness on my head, relieved at once my solicitude ; and, having mildly heard a fervent effusion, which I pronounced with weeping eyes, commanded me to ask for whatever I most desired : I asked for true piety towards him ; and he gave it with gracious praise, added to heavenly benedictions. Adore, therefore, and invoke perpetually that invisible being, who, having no shape, is described in the Vayds by a similitude, and compared to a bottomless ocean of innumerable virtues.”

“ How salutary,” said Gerúr, “ are the lessons of a spiritual instructor ! If a hundred Brahmas and a hundred Mahadayos had assisted me, I should not have been so effectually relieved.”

After a long conversation between Busund and his penitent visitor, in which they reciprocally told their most interesting adventures, the crow discoursed more at large on the grandeur of Ra'm, and the blessings of the age, in which he appeared on earth. “ Very different,” continued he, “ will be the Cal Yug, or age of impurity ! Then shall priests, kings, and subjects, be wholly abandoned to vice ; neglecting holy rites, and the due observance of ranks ; not considering genuine piety, as the true, and invaluable gem, which all ought to seek : such as babble fastest will be dignified with the title of Pendits ; and such as relate most untruths, with the epithet of virtuous ; they who wear necklaces of beads, and the dress of Gosains, will be revered as observers of inspired scripture ; and they who suffer their nails to grow unpaired, and their hair uncut, or stand longest on one leg, holding the other in their hand, as devout Senniya'sys : the low cast of Shudrs will have Bráhmens for their disciples, and presume to wear the same cord ; while the Bráhmens will be distinguished only by that mark, which they will be sure to display uncovered : they will be illiterate, covetous, luxurious, inobservant of rites, and resembling bulls without their tails ; dissipating the property, not the ignorance, or uneasiness, of their pupils ; and even parents will instruct their children in gluttony, not in religion. Then will Ra'já's be merciless, and profligate, putting Bráhmens to death, and continually racking or amercing their subjects, numbers of whom will die through want, since famine will from time to time desolate whole provinces ; the clouds will shed no rain ; and the ground will yield no return for the grains it has received : yet, even in this debased age, the miserable race of men may be saved by affectionate devotion towards Ra'm, not appearing in external acts, but glowing in the recesses of the heart."

"The disorders of that age," said the eagle, "will, indeed, be as terrible, as the remedy is delightful, and certain."

"Happy," said Bhushunda, "will be they, who faithfully apply it ; but the domination of pride is more or less absolute in every human breast : this abominable sin caused the many changes of my form, and my condemnation to a lonely residence among these rocks.

In a temple of Maha'dayo I stood invoking his name, when the guide of my youth, my instructor in religious duties, entered it with true humility ; yet such was my arrogance, from a vain conceit of my own piety and knowledge, that I made him no salutation, and showed him no respect. He opened not his lips, nor was he moved to anger by my presumption ; but the God, whom we adored, bore it not so mildly, and in a tremendous voice from above, thundered against me a sentence of perpetual misery. This dreadful judgment threw my indulgent preceptor into an agony of grief ; his limbs trembled, his tongue faltered ; and casting himself on the earth, with clasped hands, he supplicated for a mitigation of my doom. Such benignity, and zeal, could not but appease the wrathful divinity, who spoke thus from the summit of Ca'íla's : 'Justice requires the chastisement of this proud mortal, but thy piety has procured a remission of its greatest pains. He shall suffer a thousand transmigrations, and in all of them shall exist without pleasure, but not without wisdom; he shall be a constant adorer of Vishn, and again shall assiduously invoke my name. This blessing, too, shall attend him : he shall be loved by all.' On leaving my human shape by death, I was re-born in that of a serpent ; and in all my metamorphoses, continued to worship Maha'dayo, by whose grace I left each body, as a man puts off his old vesture.

"After many changes I became a Bra'hmen, but the seeds of pride still germinating in my heart, I disliked the instructions of my father, and retiring to the woods and mountains, meditated incessantly on the attributes of God ; there I heard the discourses of a venerable Ricshy, with whom I had the boldness to contend in argument, and to maintain the preference of devotion towards the visible or incarnate, over that towards the invisible deity. The sage, irritated by my obstinate presumption, lost for a while the command of his temper, and uttered an imprecation, in consequence of which I thus exist as a bird of the lowest race ; but Maha'dayo, having calmed his disturbed intellect, he repented of his anger, and when I assumed my present figure, consoled me with tender expressions, gave me the Mentr, or Incantation of Ra'm, advised me to attend the God in his infancy, and afterwards to seek this retirement, in which I have spent myriads of years : he concluded with a benison, confirmed by a voice from heaven, saying : 'Granted be the wishes of the pious !'

Here has my opinion been more and more deeply fixed, that the ignorant who neglect the cow CA'MD'HEN, source of all true felicity, and aspire only to sensual gratifications, resemble those who go searching for the herb acun, but only desire its milk ; that men without religion, are like those who try to pass the ocean without a ship ; and that, although the human soul be an immortal emanation from the divinity, they who are swayed by their passions, become like parrots in a cage, or apes confined by a chain. Not so the religious, who study the Vayds, and perform good actions ; they resemble cows depasturing green plains, whose udders are distended with milk, with which the herdsman fills his bowl ; then, having boiled it, he lets it cool in the fresh air, turns it into curd, and beats it into delicious butter. Piety is the fire, which increases the goodness of the milk, burning away the stains of vice ; and repentance constitutes the butter, which being converted into oil, supplies the lamp of the understanding, by which divine books are perused, and luminous truths discovered. Then the propitious gods delight to co-operate with mortals ; in each of whose corporeal tenses are many lattices where the deities continually keep watch ; and, if the soul unwarily leaves them open to the hot envenomed wind of temptation, a sincere invocation of those heavenly guardians will preserve the precious light from total extinction.

The transported eagle attentively heard the sublime doctrines of Busunda', and requested him to complete the lesson, by defining the most excellent of natural forms, the highest good, the chief pain and pleasure, the greatest wickedness, and the severest punishment.

' I will describe them,' answered the crow, ' with precision. In the three worlds, empyreal, terrestrial, and infernal, no form excels the human ; supreme felicity on earth, consists in genuine piety, and contempt of worldly advantages ; the highest enjoyment is the conversation of the devout, and virtuous ; the keenest pain is inflicted by extreme poverty ; the worst of sins is uncharitableness, and the uncharitable, who never fail to blaspheme the deities, and condemn the Vayds, shall be punished in the profoundest hell ; while the despisers of their spiritual guides, shall eternally live as frogs ; of the Brahmens as crows ; of the pious, as night-ravens ; of other men, as bats : such miseries are the fruit of ungoverned passion !'

' How should he,' continued Busunda', ' who loves all men, and whom all men love, be torn by affliction ; or he be neces-situous, who possesses the stone paras? How can they who hate their neighbours, be free from terror; or how can the voluptuous be ultimately free from pain? How can that country prosper, in which Brahmens are injuriously treated? or how shall that kingdom stand, in which justice is not administered? How can he fail of success, who acts with circumspection? How shall they be tormented with gloomy apprehensions, who despise not the virtuous? How shall he be rescued from perdition, who seduces the wife of another? or he live happily, who murmurs at Providence? Who can be glorified without merit? and who can be dishonoured without blame? How, lastly, can sin dwell in him, who listen to the story, and pours forth the praises of RA'M? No happiness can equal the pure devotion of his adorers."

[THE following fragments were submitted to the perusal of a friend *, and are now published at his recommendation, communicated to the Editor in the following terms :

“The fragments submitted to my perusal, consist of translations of passages in the Védas, and appear to be materials selected by Sir William Jones, for the elucidation of a Dissertation ‘On the Primitive Religion of the Hindus.’ This Dissertation was professedly intended, ‘to remove the veil from the supposed mysteries of the primeval Indian Religion’; and it is much to be regretted, that it was never completed, and that the fragments, which are extremely curious and interesting, cannot be published with that elucidation which they would have received from the pen of the translator. I re commend, however, the publication of them, as well as of the following extract.”]

EXTRACT FROM A DISSERTATION ON THE PRIMITIVE RELIGION OF THE HINDUS.

* * * * * but that I may not seem to appropriate the merit of discoveries which others have previously made, I think it necessary to say, that the original Gayatri, or holiest verse in the Veda, has already been published, though very incorrectly, by Fra Manuel da Assomcaon, a successful missionary from Portugal, who may have received it, as his countrymen assert, from a converted *Bráhma*n ; that the same venerable text was seen in the hand of Mr. WILKINS, who no doubt well understood it, by two pandits of my acquaintance, and that a paraphrase of it in Persian may be found in the curious work of DARASHUCUH, which deserves to be mentioned very particularly. That amiable, but impolitic prince, who sacrificed his throne, and his life, to a premature declaration of his religious opinions, had employed six months, as he tells us at Banaras, in translating, and explaining, fifty-one Upanishads, or secrets of the old Indian scripture ; but he translated only the verbal interpretation of his pandits, and blended the text of the Veda, with different glosses, and even with the conversation, I believe, of his living Hindu expositors, who are naturally so loquacious, that when they have began taking, they hardly know how to close their lips.

*Lord Teigumouth.

Of this book I procured, with the assistance of Colonel Polier, a complete copy, corrected by a learned Rāja', named Anandaram, with whom the Colonel was very intimate : but though sublime, and majestic, features of the original were discernible, in parts, through folds of the Persian drapery ; yet the Sanscrit names were so barbarously written, and the additions of the translator has made the work so deformed, that I resolved to postpone a regular perusal of it till I could compare it with the Sanscrit original

THE GAYATRI OR HOLIEST VERSE OF THE VEDAS.

LET us adore the supremacy of that divine sun † the godhead ‡ who illuminates all, who recreates all, "from whom all proceed, to whom all must* return, whom we invoke to direct our understandings aright in our progress towards his holy seat.

WHAT the sun and light are to this visible world, that, are the supreme good, and truth, to the intellectual and invisible universe ; and, as our corporeal eyes have a distinct perception of objects enlightened by the sun, thus our souls acquire certain knowledge, by meditating on the light of truth, which emanates from the Being of beings : that is the light by which alone our minds can be directed in the path to beatitude.

† Opposed to the visible luminary.

‡ Bhargus, a word consisting of three consonants, derived from bhà to shine ; ram, to delight ; gam, to move.

apànipādó javanó grīhītà,

 tamāhuragryam perusham mahāritam.

Without hand or foot he runs rapidly, and grasps firmly ; without eyes he sees, without ears he hears all ; he knows whatever can be known, but there is none who knows him : Him the wise call the great, supreme, pervading spirit.

Of this text, and a few others, RA'DHA'ĀNT has given a paraphrase:

“Perfect truth ; perfect happiness ; without equal ; immortal ; absolute unity ; whom neither speech can describe, nor mind comprehend ; all-pervading ; all-transcending ; delighted with his own boundless intelligence, not limited by space, or time ; without feet, moving swiftly ; without hands, grasping all worlds ; without eyes, all-surveying ; without ears, all-hearing ; without an intelligent guide, understanding all ; without cause, the first of all causes ; all-ruling ; all-powerful ; the creator, preserver, transformer, of all things ; such is the Great One : this the Vēdas declare.”

1. WHAT relish can there be for enjoyments in this unsound body, filled with bad odours, composed of bones, skin, tendons, membranes, muscles, blood, saliva, tears, ordure, and urine, bile and mucus ?

2. What relish can there be for enjoyment in this body ; assailed by desire and wrath, by avarice and illusion, fear and sorrow, envy and hate, by absence from those whom we love, and by union with those whom we dislike, by hunger and thirst, by disease and emaciation, by growth and decline, by old age and death ?

3. Surely we see this universe tending to decay, even as these biting gnats and other insects ; even as the grass of the field, and the trees of the forest, which spring up and then perish.

* Instead of Vét̥tā some copies of the text have chét̥tā for chétayitā, or director of the mind, Τὸ ἡγεμονιχέν.

4. But what are they ? Others, far greater, have been archers mighty in battle, and some have been kings of the whole earth.

5. SUDHUMNA, BHURIDHUMNA, INDRADHUMNA, CUVALAYA'SWA, YANVANA'SWA, AVADHYASWA, ASWAPATI, SASABINDU, HAVISEHANDRA, BARISHSHA, NAHUSHA, SURYATI, YAYATI, VICRAVA, ACSHAYASENA, PRIYAVRATA, and the rest.

6. MARUTTA likewise, and BHARATA, who enjoyed all corporeal delights, yet left their boundless prosperity, and passed from this world to the next.

7. But what are they ? Others yet greater, Gandawas, Asuras, Racshasas, companies of spirits, Pisachas, Uragas, and Grânas, have we seen been destroyed.

8. But what are they ? Others, greater still, have been changed ; vast rivers dried ; mountains torn up ; the pole itself moved from its place ; the cords of the stars rent asunder ; the whole earth itself deluged with water ; even the sufes or angels hurled from their stations.

9. In such a world, then, what relish can there be for enjoyment ? Thou alone art able to raise up.

I am in this world like a frog in a dry well : Thou only, O Lord, art my refuge : thou only art my refuge.

1. MAY that soul of mine which mounts aloft in my waking hours, as an ethereal spark, and which, even in my slumber, has a like ascent, soaring to a great distance, as an emanation from the light of lights, be united by devout meditation with the Spirit supremely blest, and supremely intelligent !

2. May that soul of mine, by an agent, similar to which the low-born perform their menial works, and the wise, deeply versed in sciences, duly solemnize their sacrificial rite ; that soul, which was itself the primeval oblation placed within all creatures, be united by devout meditation with the Spirit supremely blest, and supremely intelligent !

3. May that soul of mine, which is a ray of perfect wisdom, pure intellect and permanent existence, which is the unextinguishable light fixed within created bodies, without which no good act is performed, be united by devout meditation with the Spirit supremely blest, and supremely intelligent !

4. May that soul of mine, in which, as an immortal essence, may be comprised whatever has past, is present, or will be hereafter ; by which the sacrifice, where seven ministers officiate, is properly solemnized ; be united by devout meditation with the Spirit supremely blest, and supremely intelligent !

5. May that soul of mine, into which are inserted, like the spokes of a wheel in the axle of a car, the holy texts of the Rigveda, the Sâman, and the Yajush ; into which is interwoven all that belongs to created forms, be united by devout meditation with the Spirit supremely blest, and supremely intelligent !

6. May that soul of mine, which, distributed in other bodies, guides mankind, as a skilful charioteer guides his rapid horses with reins ; that soul which is fixed in my breast, exempt from old age, and extremely swift in its course, be united, by divine meditation, with the Spirit supremely blest, and supremely intelligent !

“There is one living and true God, everlasting, without body, parts, or passion, of infinite power, wisdom, and goodness ; the maker and preserver of all things, both visible. &c. &c.”

I'S A'V A'S Y A M;

OR,

AN UPANISHAD FROM THE YAJUR VEDA.

1. BY one Supreme Ruler is this universe pervaded ; even every world in the whole circle of nature. Enjoy pure delight, O man ! by abandoning all thoughts of this perishable world ; and covet not the wealth of any creature existing.

2. He who, in this life, continually performs his religious duties, may desire to live a hundred years ; but even to the end of that period thou shouldst have no other occupation here below.

3. To those regions, where evil spirits dwell, and which utter darkness involves, will such men surely go after death as destroy the purity of their own souls.

4. There is one supreme Spirit, which nothing can shake, more swift than the thought of man. That primeval Mover, even divine intelligences cannot reach : that Spirit, though unmoved, infinitely transcends others, how rapid soever their course.

5. That supreme Spirit moves at pleasure, but in itself is immoveable ; it is distant from us, yet very near us ; it pervades this whole system of worlds, yet is infinitely beyond it.

6. The man who considers all beings as existing even in the supreme spirit, and the supreme spirit as pervading all beings, henceforth views no creature with contempt.

7. In him who knows that all spiritual beings are the same in kind with the supreme spirit, what room can there be for delusion of mind, or what room for sorrow when he reflects on the identity of spirit ?

8. The pure enlightened soul assumes a luminous form with no gross body, with no perforation, with no veins, or tendons, unblemished, untainted by sin, itself being a ray from the infinite, spirit, which knows the past and the future, which pervades all, which existed with no cause but itself, which created all things as they are in ages very remote.

9. They who are ignorantly devoted to the mere ceremonies of religion are fallen into thick darkness, but they surely have a thicker gloom around them who are solely attached to speculative science.

10. A distinct reward, they say, is reserved for ceremonies, and a distinct reward, they say, for divine knowledge ; adding, " This we have heard from sages who declared it to us."

11. He alone is acquainted with the nature of ceremonies, and with that of speculative science, who is acquainted with both at once : by religious ceremonies he passes the gulph of death, and by divine knowledge he attains immortality.

12. They who adore only the appearances and forms of the deity are fallen into thick darkness, but they surely have a thicker gloom around them who are solely devoted to the abstract essence of the divine essence.

13. A distinct reward, they say, is obtained by adoring the forms and attributes, and a distinct reward, they say, by adoring the abstract essence ; adding : " This we have heard from sages who declare it to us."

14. He only knows the forms and the essence of the deity who adores both at once ; by adoring the appearances of the deity, he passes the gulph of death, and by adoring his abstract essence he attains immortality.

15. Unveil, O Thou who givest sustenance to the world, that face of the true sun, which is now hidden by a vase of golden light ! so that we may see the truth, and know our whole duty !

16. O Thou who givest sustenance to the world, thou sole mover of all, thou who restrainest sinners, who pervadest yon great luminary, who appearest as the Son of the Creator ; hide thy dazzling beams, and expand thy spiritual brightness, that I may view thy most auspicious, most glorious, real form.

“OM, Remember me, divine spirit !”

“OM, Remember my deeds.”

17. That all-pervading spirit, that spirit which gives light to the visible sun, even the same in kind am I, though infinitely distant in degree. Let my soul return to the immortal spirit of God, and then let my body, which ends in ashes, return to dust !

18. O spirit, who pervadest fire, lead us in a straight path to the riches of beatitude ! Thou, O God, possessest all the treasures of knowledge : remove each foul taint from our souls ; we continually approach thee with the highest praise, and the most fervid adoration.

FROM THE YAJURVEDA.

1. AS a tree, the lord of the forest, even so, without fiction, is man : his hairs are as leaves ; his skin, as exterior bark.

2. Through the skin flows blood ; through the rind, sap : from a wounded man, therefore, blood gushes, as the vegetable fluid from a tree that is cut.

3. His muscles are as interwoven fibres ; the membrane round his bones as interior bark, which is closely fixed : his bones are as the hard pieces of wood within : their marrow is composed of pith.

4. Since the tree, when felled, springs again, still fresher, from the root, from what root springs mortal man when felled by the hand of death ?

5. Say not, he springs from seed : seed surely comes from the living. A tree, no doubt, rises from seed, and after death has a visible renewal.

6. But a tree which they have plucked up by the root, flourishes individually no more. From what root then springs mortal man when felled by the hand of death ?

7. Say not he was born before ; he is born : who can make him spring again to birth ?

8. God, who is perfect wisdom, perfect happiness, He is the final refuge of the man, who has liberally bestowed his wealth, who has been firm in virtue, who knows and adores that Great One.

A HYMN TO THE NIGHT.

NIGHT approaches illumined with stars and planets, and looking on all sides with numberless eyes, overpowers all meaner lights. The immortal goddess pervades the firmament covering the low valleys and shrubs and the lofty mountains and trees, but soon she disturbs the gloom with celestial effulgence. Advancing with brightness, at length she recalls her sister Morning ; and the nightly shade gradually melts away.

May she, at this time, be propitious ! She, in whose early watch, we may calmly recline in our mansion, as birds repose on the tree.

Mankind now sleep in their town ; now herds and flock^s peacefully slumber, and winged creatures, even swift falcons and vultures.

O Night, avert from us the she-wolf and the wolf ; and oh ! suffer us to pass thee in soothing rest !

O Morn, remove, in due time, this black, yet visible, overwhelming darkness which at present infolds me, as thou enablest me to remove the cloud of their debts.

Daughter of heaven, I approach thee with praise, as the cow approaches her milker ; accept, O Night, not the hymn only, but the oblation of thy suppliant, who prays that his foes may be subdued.

The following Fragment is a Translation from a Sanscrit Work, entitled,

THE IGNORANT INSTRUCTED.

1. RESTRAIN, O ignorant man, thy desire of wealth, and become a hater of it in body, understanding, and mind : let the riches thou possessest be acquired by thy own good actions, with those gratify thy soul.

2. The boy so long delights in his play, the youth so long pursues his beloved, the old so long brood over melancholy thoughts, that no man meditates on the supreme being.

3. Who is thy wife, and who thy son ? How great and wonderful is this world : whose thou art, and whence thou comest ? Meditate on this, my brother, and again on this.

4. Be not proud of wealth and attendants, and youth ; since time destroys all of them in the twinkling of an eye : check thy attachment to all these illusions, like Maya ; fix thy heart on the foot of Brahmā, and thou wilt soon know him.

5. As a drop of water moves on the leaf of the lotus ; thus, or more slippery, is human life : the company of the virtuous endures here but for a moment ; that is the vehicle to bear thee over land and ocean.

6. To dwell in the mansion of Gods at the foot of a tree ; to have the ground for a bed, and a hide for vesture ; to renounce all ties of family or connections ; who would not receive delight from this devout abhorrence of the world.

7. Set not thy affections on foe, or friend ; on a son, or a relation ; in war, or in peace ; bear an equal mind towards all ; if thou desirest it, thou wilt soon be like Vishnu.

8. Day and night, evening and morn, winter and spring, depart and return ! Time sports, age passes on, desire and the wind continue unrestrained.

9. When the body is tottering, the head grey, and the mouth toothless ; when the smooth stick trembles in the hand, which it supports, yet the vessel of covetousness remains unemptied.

10. So soon born, so soon dead ! so long lying in thy mother's womb ! so great crimes are committed in the world ! How then, O man, canst thou live here below with complacency ?

11. There are eight original mountains, and seven seas—Brahma, Indra, the Sun, and Kudra.—These are permanent, not thou, not I, not this, or that people : what, therefore, should occasion our sorrow ?

12. In thee, in me, in every other, Vishnu resides : in vain art thou angry with me, not bearing my approach : this is perfectly true, all must be esteemed equal : be not, therefore, proud of a magnificent palace.

This is the instruction of learners, delivered in twelve measures : what more can be done with those, whom this work doth fill with devotion ?

Thus ends the book, named Môhadmudgara, or the Ignorant Instructed, (properly the Mallet of the Ignorant), composed by the holy, devout, and prosperous Sancar Acharya.

THE SEASONS;

(A DESCRIPTIVE POEM FROM THE ORIGINAL SAN SCRIT.)

BY CA'LIDA'S.

ADVERTISEMENT.

[THIS book is the first ever printed in Sanscrit ; and it is by the press alone, that the ancient literature of India can long be preserved : a learner of that most interesting language who had carefully perused one of the popular grammars, could hardly begin his course of study with an easier or more elegant work, than the Ritusanhára, or Assemblage of Seasons. Every line composed by CA'LIDA'S is exquisitely polished ; and every couplet in the poem exhibits an Indian landscape, always beautiful, sometimes highly coloured, but never beyond nature : four copies of it have been diligently collated ; and where they differed, the clearest and most natural reading has constantly had the preference.]

W. J.

PREFACE.

AMONG eleven or twelve Persian Poems on the story of LAILI' and MAJNU'N, that of HA'TIFI' seems universally esteemed the simplest and most pathetic. The tale itself is extremely simple ; and the more affecting, because it is true ; for KAIS, who became frantic from disappointed love, and thence had the surname of Majnūn, was a most accomplished and amiable youth, the only son of an Arabian chieftain in the first age of the Mohammedan empire : fragments of his beautiful poetry are still repeated with rapture by the Arabs of Hejaz ; and the best works of the Persians abound in allusions to his unfortunate passion. LAILI', or LAILA, as her name is pronounced in Arabia, was the daughter of a neighbouring chief, and was also eminently accomplished ; yet she had no transcendent beauty, it seems, in any eyes but those of her lover : SADI', who represents her with a swarthy complexion and of low stature, tells a long, but at agreeable, story on the same subject, which the Maulavi of Rām has comprized in two couplets—"The Khalifah said to LAILI', art thou the damsel, for whom the lost MAJNU'N is become a wanderer in the desert ? Thou surpassest not other girls in beauty. She said : Be silent ; for thou art not Majnūn."

For the short account of our Poet exhibited in the Persian preface, we are obliged to the kindness of ALI' IBRA'HIM KHAN, one of the best bred, most learned, and most virtuous Muselmāns in the British territories. ABDULLAH, surnamed HA'TIFI', who died in the year 1520 of our era, was a nephew, we find, of NU'RUDDIN, usually called Jāmi' from the village of Jām in

Khora'san, with whom he lived on more amicable terms, than could naturally have been expected between rival poets ; and, if he was inferior to his uncle in learning or in art, he certainly surpassed him in genius. His principal ambition was to enter the lists with NIZA'MI, by composing five poems on the same or similar subjects with the Khamsah of that illustrious author ; and how far he succeeded in his competition, every reader must decide for himself : my own opinion is, that he has not even approached the splendour and sublimity of his master's diction, but that he has excelled him in tenderness and simplicity ; and, most probably, NIZA'MI valued himself solely on his rich and elevated composition, whilst HA'TIFI aimed only at sweetness and pathos, each attaining the summit of excellence in the style which he professed. The fate of the two poets has been very different ; for, while the five poems of NIZA'MI have a place in most Asiatic libraries and in general are beautifully copied, those of HA'TIFI are extremely scarce and negligently transcribed : his Haft Paicar, or the Seven Images, is barely named by D'HERBELOT, who mentions also his Zafar Na'nah, an Heroic Poem on the actions of TAIMUR, which was designed to emulate that of NIZA'MI on the victories of ALEXANDER ; but I have never been able to procure any of his works except his Laili Majnu'n, the scarcity of which was my chief inducement for publishing it. The reader must not expect a complete edition of the poem, which I have neither materials nor leisure to exhibit, but merely an impression of my manuscript, which unhappily is far from being correct. A Muselman of high rank, who first named the work to me, promised to send me in Bengal a well-collated copy of it ; but he forgot his promise ; and the imperfection of this edition must partly be ascribed to his forgetfulness ; partly to my own haste, inadvertence, or ignorance. Since the book has been printed, I have read it four or five times with great attention ; and, having procured two other manuscripts, when the last sheet was in the press, I perused them also with as much attention as they deserved, but with very trifling advantage : I then formed a table of corrections, while two learned natives were severally engaged in the same labour ; but, finding their tables to differ considerably from each other, I have reduced them to a short compass by omitting every doubtful emendation, and every grammatical error, by which no Persian scholar could be misled. In many places the common orthographical marks are omitted (as they are, indeed, in the best manuscripts), and in some places they are added, where the sense or the metre necessarily requires their omission : between some few words the copulative is erroneously inserted, and between others it is inaccurately omitted, having probably dropped out in the press-work : lastly, some couplets are evidently transposed, especially in the dialogue between MAJNU'N and LAILI's mother, where I suspected on the first perusal of it, that near thirty distichs were out of their place ; but I had not the courage to depart from the authority of my manuscript in a most pathetic episode, where it might have been the poet's design to break the usual connexion of ideas in minds distracted with anguish ; as the great Italian composers often violate every rule of harmony in expressing tumultuous passions. On the whole, the book is by no means perfect ; but, since it is far more correct than any Persian or Arabic book of the same length, that I ever perused, I am fully convinced that it will afford the reader as much delight, as I have myself received, and shall continue to receive, from it.

The best guide in amending all poetical works is an accurate knowledge of the measures, in which they are composed ; yet a want of that knowledge in editors of Greek and Arabian poems, has been the occasion of so many mistakes, that a collection of them would fill a volume : in Persian few poems have been printed ; but, if GENTIUS had only been able to distinguish prose from verse, as it is manifest that he was not able, he would have done more justice to the beautiful Gulista'n, which he had the merit of selecting for publication. The measure of the poem before us, which has enabled me to correct a number of lines in it, is exactly in this form :

Lex omnibus impera're debét,

with a strong accent on the second, seventh, and tenth syllables ; and it is very remarkable, that almost every couplet in that measure may be transposed, by an easy change of the accent, into common English verse : thus HA'TIFI says,

ān t'orfah sahī kadī gulendām
az kais robūd s'abru ārām,
būdī birokhī nicūyi ù shād,
vaz khwāb u khoresh nayāmadi yād,
ishk āmad u der du sinah jā card,
khodr ā bidu yār āshnā card,
bāz āmadi u bihem nishastī,
vaz goft u shenid leb nabastī,
ishān ghemi dil bicas nagoftend,
rāzi del az in u ān nahoftend.

These five distichs may be thus translated in the measure of the original :

With cheeks, where eternal paradise bloóm'd,
 Sweet Laïli the soul of Kais had consúm'd ;
 Transpórted her heav'nly gráces he vièw'd,
 Of slúmber no more he thought, nor of foód :
 Love rais'd in their glowing bósoms his thróne,
 Adópting the chosen pair as his ówn,
 Togéther on flow'ry seàts they repós'd ;
 Their hps not one idle móment were clós'd :
 To mórtals they gave no hìnt of their smàrt ;
 Love ónly the secret dréw from each heàrt.

And a bare transposition of the accents gives us five English couplets in the form, which some call heroic, and others, elegiac :

With cheeks, where paradise eternal bloom'd,
 Sweet Laïli had the soul of Kais consum'd ;
 Her heav'nly graces he transported view'd ;
 No more he thought of slumber or of food,
 Love in their glowing bosoms rais'd his throne,
 The chosen pair adopting as his own.

On flow'ry seats together they repos'd ;
 Their lips one idle moment were not clos'd ;
 No hint they gave to mortals of their smart ;
 Love only drew the secret from each heart.

Nevertheless, if the whole poem should ever be translated into English (by me it certainly never will), I would recommend a version in modulated, but unaffected, prose in preference to rhymed couplets ; and, though not a single image or thought should be added by the translator, yet it would be allowable to omit several conceits, which would appear unbecoming in an European dress ; for the poem, with all its beauties, has conceits in it, like the black spots on some very beautiful flowers ; but they are neither so numerous nor so unpleasant, as those in the poem of VENUS and ADONIS, and we cannot with justice show less indulgence to a poet of Iràn, than we all show to our immortal countryman, SHAKSPEARE.

I wish I could conceal the principal object of this publication, without impeding or delaying the object itself ; but, since I am conscious, that what I am going to add has the appearance only of ostentation, and that my purpose cannot be answered, unless it be speedily and generally known, I think it necessary to declare, that the property of the whole impression belongs from this moment to the attorney for the poor in the Supreme Court, in trust for the miserable persons under execution for debt in the prison of Calcutta : should all the copies be sold, there will be near twelve thousand Sicca Rupees in the hands of the trustee, who will immediately apply them, without any distinction of religion or country, to the effectual relief, as far as they will extend, of such prisoners as have been longest confined, and are not relievable by the rules of the Court. This assistance, I fear, will set at liberty but few of the unhappy men, who now suffer the worst of human misfortunes ; but it is possible, that the liberality of the public may, in some mode or another, extend itself to those who remain in prison ; for, even if the legislature should ultimately relieve them, yet multitudes of them will perish, and all must wish to perish, before any relief can arrive from Europe.

The incorrectness of modern Arabian and Persian books is truly deplorable : nothing can preserve them in any degree of accuracy but the art of printing ; and, if Asiatic literature should ever be general, it must diffuse itself, as Greek learning was diffused in Italy after the taking of Constantinople, by mere impressions of the best manuscripts without versions or comments, which future scholars would add at their leisure to future editions ; but no printer could engage in so expensive a business, without the patronage and the purse of monarchs or states or societies of wealthy individuals, or at least without a large public subscription : there are printers in Bengal, who, if they were duly encouraged, would give us editions of HA'FIZ and SADI, or, perhaps, of NIZA'MI' and FIRDAUSI' ; and there are indigent natives of eminent learning, who would gladly correct the press for a small monthly salary. I shall ever be ready to promote such undertakings as a subscriber, but shall never more appear as an editor or a translator of any Persian book whatever.

W. JONES.
